ALL ON BOARD SAVED AS SHIP RUNS AGROUND

65 Passengers and Crew Leave Wreck Off Tip of Newfoundland.

BATTLE FOG FOR SIX HOURS IN LIFEBOATS

Captain Quiets Fears of Women as Near Panic Follows Crash.

U. S. LINER CRIPPLED IN CHANNEL MISHAP

Voyagers on S. S. American Farmer Transferred to Leviathan.

St. Johns, Newfoundland, Aug. 10 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Sixty-five passengers and the crew of the Newfoundland government steamer Caribou, including 19 women and a few children, took to the lifeboats at dawn today when the 2,222-ton vessel crashed into a jutting point of land near Grand Bay, off the southwest tip of Newfoundland, in a dense fog, was crushed in from the turn of her bow to her after engine house and had to be abandoned as she filled with water.

Six hours later, after groping through the murky fog and battling against a heavy ground swell, set rolling by a gale of the previous 48 hours, all were safely landed at Port aux Basques, for which the wrecked vessel was bound on her regular run from ...th Sydney, Nova Scotia.

Tonight the passengers from the wrecked steamer are en route to St. Johns by an express, which is due here tomorrow afternoon.

Mill About in Terror.

Two hundred sacks of United States and Canadian letter mail were recovered later today from the Caribou by the salvage steamer Basques and brought to Port aux Basques. Efforts were being made to save some of the 400 tons of freight aboard.

Only a narrow point of land separates Port aux Basques from Grand Bay, the approach to both being almost identical in appearance from seaward. At the time of the wreck—5:30 o'clock this morning—the fog was so thick it was impossible to see a ship's length. In the half light of dawn the mouth of Grand Bay was mistaken for the entrance to Port aux Basques, 3½ miles to the west, and the steamer ran ashore.

All of the passengers were below decks and most of them asleep in their bunks when the ship struck. They were thrown into a near panic by the terrific, unexpected shock. Wildly they tumbled onto deck, clamoring in their terror for some word of what had happened.

Try to Crowd Boats.

Capt. Robertson, ordinarily first officer of the Caribou, but in command during the vacation of Capt. Tavinor, quickly quieted the fears of the excited women. Most of the men passengers remained cool-headed and reassured the panicky ones that all would get safely away from the stove-in vessel.

Capt. Robertson ordered all passengers to return to their cabins and gather their clothing and other belongings while the lifeboats were being swung out. This convinced the passengers of their safety as it indicated that there was no immediate danger of the ship sinking. They obeyed the officer's instructions and order was restored while the boats were prepared for launching. Further reassurance was provided by the fact that there were lifeboats enough for 300 persons.

When ordered to take their assigned boat stations some of the passengers were overcome by a second moment of panic. Several attempted to crowd into the first boat launched, although not assigned to it. The captain and officers sharply ordered them to await their proper turns and the rush was checked before dangerous stampeding began. The boats were lowered without mishap and all were safely away within half an hour of the stranding.

Steamer Total Wreck.

There was little wind, but a fairly heavy sea was running as a result of the high winds that had been blowing for two days before the wreck. This fortunate circumstance undoubtedly obviated what might have been a tragic disaster.

As the lifeboats pulled away it was clear to all on board that the Caribou had a total wreck. She had begun to settle and slosh around in the shallow water before she was abandoned.

Another Newfoundland government steamer, the Glencoe, now at Burgeo, will immediately take up the Caribou's regular run so that there will be no service between Port aux Basques and Port Hawkes. The wrecked ship

Calvin Coolidge

Says: Good health is one of our chief national assets, yet, in spite of all the progress that has been made in the science of hygiene, the yearly losses in this country from the ravages of disease run into many hundreds of millions of dollars.

The discouraging feature of the situation is that much of this is needless. With the present knowledge of medicine, surgery and dentistry, and the possibilities of preventive measures, oftentimes illness is only personal carelessness.

People give altogether too little attention to their health. They neglect to get sufficient fresh air and exercise. They are not careful enough of their diet. They overstrain their physical and nervous systems with disastrous results.

Because illness makes us a liability to ourselves, our family and our community, we all have a personal obligation to keep well. To neglect the health is one of the most wasteful things a person can do. It is a violation of a moral duty. While both State and national agencies are alert to preserve health, the real success of all their efforts lies in the vigilance of the individual. If we would all think and try to live healthful lives we would greatly increase the power of the Nation.

VETERINARIAN DIED AS RESULT OF BLOW

Autopsy Reveals Injuries and Jury Will Decide What Caused Them.

MAN ARRESTED IN CASE

An autopsy performed yesterday on the body of George C. Pearson, 65-year-old veterinarian, who died Saturday, showed that the man died of injuries to the head. A coroner's jury this morning will decide whether the injuries were received during a fight or as a result of the man's fall.

Pearson was a roomer in the home of John Patrick Quill, 71, at 3643 Warder street northwest. Quill is being held at the Tenth Precinct for action of the coroner's jury.

It was at first believed that Pearson had died from natural causes. Later Quill is said to have admitted that he had struck or pushed the younger man, and that Pearson fell to the floor. When he did not arise, Dr. Thomas J. Kennedy, of 3609 Georgia avenue, was called and pronounced him dead. It is said that Pearson had suffered from heart disease.

The autopsy was performed by Dr. A. M. McDonald.

Suspicion arose that the man's death was not due to natural causes when investigators found blood on his face near his mouth. Quill, who is a messenger in the Department of Agriculture, is said to have, during the quarrel, struck Pearson. Quill's daughter previous had asked neighbors to call police. They delayed doing this, however.

Quill told police that the argument started when Pearson rushed at him. Previously the veterinarian had bene sitting quietly on the porch, he said, but he became excited from some unknown cause. After Quill struck Pearson the messenger retreated behind a table, saying he was afraid of the younger man, who was large and stronger than his yeras would indictaed. Quill isalleged to have shoved the table at Pearson, who fell and failed to rise.

Mrs. Frank Foster, daughter of Dr. Pearson, returned last night from Wildwood, N. J., where she had been spending her vacation. It was while she was away that her father stayed at the Quill home. She was prostrated last night. Friends of the family said that Dr. Pearson and Quill had been close friends for many years.

Dr. Pearson was a thirty-second degree Mason, and the Masons will take charge of the funeral. It is expected that he will be buried tomorrow in Glenwood Cemetery. Funeral services will be at 2 o'clock at the parlors of Perry and Walsh, at 29 H street northwest.

AXMAN SLAYS TWO AS LOVE IS REFUSED

State Trooper Finds Him Staggering From House; Dead Pair in Cellar.

TWO WITNESSES HELD

Mystic, Conn., Aug. 10 (A.P.).—A tangled love affair on a Connecticut farm today resulted in the ax slaying of Mrs. Eva Jennings Roberts, 52, and Ole Ostberg, 35, and the arrest of Stanley S. Bogue, 34, rejected suitor of Mrs. Roberts, charged with murder. David Roberts, estranged husband of the slain woman, and James Collins, a boarder with Mrs. Roberts, were being held as material witnesses.

A State trooper, answering an anonymous telephone call early today, arrived at the farmhouse in Buttington road as Bogue staggered out, bleeding from self-inflicted wounds in the throat and wrists.

"They're down in the cellar," he gasped.

The trooper walked across a freshly scrubbed kitchen floor and down into the cellar, where he found the bodies beside a shallow grave. Both had been mutilated about the head and body with repeated heavy blows of an ax. The weapon believed to have been used in the killing was found, cleaned and polished, in the rear of the house.

Bogue made a full confession, police said.

According to the police version, he had been a boarder in Mrs. Roberts' farmhouse for three and a half years. Then, recently, Ostberg, a molder living at a Mystic hotel, had come from Hartford and replaced him in the 52-year-old woman's affections. Saturday night he had returned to find Mrs. Roberts and Ostberg together in the farmhouse kitchen. In a rage he snatched up an ax, he told police, and hacked away at the pair.

Then he dragged the two bodies into the cellar, washed the blood from the kitchen floor, changed his clothes and started to dig a grave. But remorse overcame him, and he slashed his wrists and throat with a carving knife. The wounds, however, were only superficial and Bogue was taken to the State police barracks for detention.

Collins, Mrs. Roberts' other boarder, was asleep in an upper room at the time. When police arrived he disclaimed any knowledge of the killing.

U. S. Sees British Request As Way to Slash Visa Fees

Great Britain Has Refused to Cut Costs to American Tourists, But Now Asks America to Waive Rule for Former Soldiers.

(Associated Press.)

After months of unsuccessful efforts to secure an agreement with Great Britain for waiver or reduction of costs of passport visas, the State Department has found a bargaining point which it hopes will eventually lead to a reciprocal visa arrangement.

With many thousand American going abroad annually, the department has successfully negotiated agreement with many of the principal European countries for a waiver of visas or a reduction of the fee which American travelers pay. Since the fee of $10 for each visa is considered by the British government to be a lucrative source of revenue, the negotiations with Great Britain for some modification of the present costly system to Americans have failed.

A new point pon which negotiations for a modified reciprocal agreement can be based was frnished the State Department by the British themselves in a formal note asking a group visa for eighteen members of the British Legion and two servants who will attend the annual conference of the Federation Interalliee des Anciens Combattants in Washington next month.

In addition to asking for the group visa, the British government request-

AFRIDIS ATTACK MILITARY BASE AT PESHAWAR

Troops Slay Tribesmen in Hot Engagement at Key City.

BRITISH FLIERS BOMB NORTH INDIA REBELS

Expected General Assault Fails to Materialize; Wires Are Cut.

SYMPATHIZERS AID PARTIES OF SNIPERS

Spread of Uprising Feared by Officials; Moslem Meeting Disorderly.

Peshawar, India, Aug. 10 (A.P.).—British troops, after a short skirmish today, beat off a raiding group of Afridi tribesmen in the gardens close to this key city of northwestern India.

The Afridis, part of a force of between five and ten thousand warriors, attacked the military supply depot near the Peshawar railway station.

Troops sent out to protect the depot drove them into a group of gardens, where there was a hot engagement. The Afridis were dislodged from their posts and driven back.

No General Attack Yet.

Peshawar tonight breather a little more freely. The invaders were reported checked at all points, and though great tension still exists the immediate danger to the city is apparently over.

The Afridis have not yet attempted to make a general attack in force on the city, which is strongly garrisoned. The chief worry among British authorities now is that other tribes might follow the lead of the Afridis, who came down the Bara River Valley near the Khyber Pass, and caused a general flare up along the Afghanistan frontier.

Communication Wires Cut.

Simla, India, Aug. 10 (A.P.).—Raiding parties of Afridi tribesmen on Saturday night cut all telegraph and telepphone wires running east and south out of Peshawar. Communication with the northwestern stronghold was very scanty today.

The British and Indian cavalrymen defending the outskirts of Peshawar skirmished nearly all day Saturday with Afridi detachments. At the village of Sorazal the troopers inflicted heavy casualties on the tribesmen.

Sniping by expert Afridi marksmen has become a menace to the city. The tribesmen are apparently being sheltered and fed by sympathizers in the surrounding villages.

At one time a party got close enough to Peshawar to set fire to a small warehouse containing army telegraph stores. British soldiers surrounded them and killed half a dozen. The fire was quickly extinguished.

Air Force Field Menaced.

London, Aug. 10 (A.P.).—Peshawar dispatches to the Daily Herald today said that in recent skirmishing on the outskirts of Peshawar six Indian troopers were killed.

The Herald's correspondent says that no general attack has been made

FIFTH SUSPECT IS ARRESTED IN M'CRORY THEFT

Baltimore Man Held as Detectives Check Up on His Story.

POLICE TO QUIZ MAN HELD IN SHOOTING

Suspect in Third Street Affray Was Sought in Robbery.

NO IDENTIFICATION MADE BY VICTIMS

Two in Custody Pointed Out by Couple Who Trailed Bandit Auto.

A fifth man was arrested yesterday for questioning in connection with the hold-up of two messengers for the McCrory 5 and 10 cent store last Thursday. The latest prisoner, Henry Joseph Mechlinski, 26 years old, of Baltimore, was brought to Washington last night by Headquarters Detective L. M. Wilson. He was held for investigation and sent to a precinct cell until detectives could check into his story.

Detectives working on the case also plan to question Thomas T. Eliam, 24 years old, of S street near North Capitol street, who is being held at the Ninth Precinct. Eliam was arrested early yesterday morning by Detectives W. B. Satterthwaite, of the Ninth Precinct, in company with three other youths.

Arrested on Suspicion.

Eliam and the other young man were arrested on suspicion of having been the occupants of a car which "shot up" the 1000 block of Third street northeast Saturday night. A lookout had been sent for him several days ago in connection with the McCrory crime.

The other men arrested a few days ago in the same case were positively identified by a taxi driver as the pair he drove from Washington to Baltimore shortly after the holdup. The men, Elmer Bennett and John Irvin, both of Baltimore, claim to have been near tthe Maryland city at the time of the crime.

David A. Beaver, colored, is the man who says that Bennett and Irvin came to his home, near Second and F streets southwest, and hired him to drive to Baltimore. The proprietor of a drug store in the neighborhood identified the couple as having bought tobacco from him just before the time Beaver said they started on the trip. The two men were arrested in Baltimore last week when they went into a police station to report stolen the car used to commit the crime, which was later found abandoned in Washington.

Two Fail to Identify.

The two men who were robbed failed to identify any of the men held, saying that they would only recognize the one who pointed the gun at them. The money carriers, Earl D. Flory and Harvey W. Smith, said they were too frightened to notice the appearance of more thane one of the bandits.

The positive identification was

ALARM IS MINIMIZED AS PRESIDENT SCANS REPORT ON DROUGHT

Distress Localized, He Is Told as 11 Governors Start for Parley.

FACTS ARE AWAITED FROM RURAL AGENTS

Hoover Plans Another Commission to Help in Relief Measures.

NO SPECIAL SESSION OF CONGRESS SEEN

Scattered Rain in Midwest Is Not Enough to Aid Withered Crops.

In the quiet of his mountain camp in Orange, Va., President Hoover yesterday discussed relief for the drought-stricken areas of the country. With him were Secretary of Agriculture Hyde and James C. Stone, vice chairman of the Federal Farm Board.

He was told there is no cause for general alarm over the prolonged drought, according to an Associated Press dispatch from the camp. Preliminary reports received by President Hoover were said to indicate that the distress is localized in a few communities and that there is no cause yet for general alarm.

No further steps toward relief of the stricken sections are to be taken, it was said, until the detailed reports from country agents showing the results from the surveys are handded to the President today by Secretary Hyde.

New Commission Sought.

President Hoover has no specific plans for presentation at the governors' conference here on Tauesday, but it will ask each of them to appoint one man as a representative from their State to compose a rehabilitation commission.

Under the plans of the President this group will cooperate with the Red Cross and the Federal Government in whatever relief steps are taken. Virtually al lthe 12 governors who were summoned to the conference have advised the White House that they will be present or send representatives.

The President does not contemplate calling Congress into special session to deal with the problem unles sit becomes vitally necessary.

President Hoover, according to the Associated Press dispatch, was said to be pleased with the action of the railroads in cutting rates to permit freer movement of live stock, feed and waterthrough the affected regions, but at this time he plans no further requests for specific reduction in rates.

Railroads to Decide.

Instead, he will leave that to the railroads themselves to act under the provisions of the Interstate Commerce Commission order permitting emergency reductions.

The Chief Executive was also said to believe that no appeal to the country for funds to relieve the distress would be necessary unless the situation became more acute.

Many of the reports from county agents on the drought situation reached the Department of Agriculture Saturday and yesterday. These will be studied today when Mr. Hyde returns to his office. An immediate report will be made to the White House.

It was pointed out by the Associated Press that some advices would be delayed in arriving because agents were taking the opportunity yesterday, when most farmers were out of the fields, to get first-hand information on crop damage.

No Great Alarm Felt.

The White House was in telephone communication twice yesterday with the Hoover camp, but had no news to furnish Mr. Hoover on the drought.

It was emphasized at the presidential camp that the heat wave is not

Airmen Leave Coast On Flight to Tokyo

Wark, Brown Take Off at Tacoma on First Leg, 1,200 Miles.

Tacoma, Wash., Aug. 10 (A.P.).—The Pacific Era, Fokker biplane with Bob Wark and Eddie L. Brown, young Seattle aviators as copilots, soared off the runway at Tacoma Field at 11:33 a. m. P. S. T. today on the first leg of a scheduled four-stop flight to Tokyo, Japan.

Just before the take-off, the fliers were advised ideal weather prevailed along the entire route of the first leg, scheduled to end at White Horse, Yukon Territory, 1,200 miles north of Tacoma, some time tonight. Wark said he expected to negotiate the distance in about twelve hours.

CAPITAL MAN KILLED IN BEACH ACCIDENT

W. W. Werback, Jr., Electrocuted Using Electric Drill in River.

FATHER RECOVERS BODY

While walking with an electric drill in his hands in a few feet of water, Wesley William Werback, jr., 28-year-old boat builder, of 2512 Q street northwest, was electrocuted yesterday morning at Edgewater Beach, Md., on South River.

The Washington man is believed to have let the drill touch the water while he had a finger on the trigger As the device was plugged into an electrical generator on shore, the current was shot through Werback's body. The normal amount of electricity generated by the device is 220 volts, and as the boat builder was standing in water he received the full force of the current.

Werback's body was rescued by his father, William Wesley Werback, sr., who witnessed the accident, and other men who were nearby. His brother, Clarence E. Werback, of 1650 Monroe street northwest, was also at the beach at the time.

The boat builder was on his way to a racing boat, anchored in the river, to make some repairs when he was killed. Accompanied by his father

WEATHER FORECAST KILLS HOPE OF RAIN

Blazing Skies to Continue, Though Capital Has Cool Sunday.

BREEZES AID COMFORT

"It Ain't Gonna Rain No Mo'." Even the Weather Bureau seems to be aligning itself with those who believe that the writer of this ditty was not an unsung—but a well-sung—prophet. "No rain in sight" was the prosaic announcement of the Weather Bureau yesterday.

Farmers in nearby areas, whose crops are seared by the prolonged drought, are about convinced that the fellow who wrote "Singing in the Rain" was just a confounded optimist. Unless some rains come very soon, "Singing in the Bath Tub" may be also stopped for lack of water in nearby Maryland.

However, yesterday was the most comfortable that Washington experienced in weeks. Cooling breezes from the Northwest descended on the Capital. The anemometer at the Weather Bureau was spun around to the tune of 20 miles an hour early yesterday and for the greater part of the day averaged a 20-mile-an-hour wind velocity.

Fair weather and an additional drop in the temperature is forecast for

Firemen in Baseball Suits Fight Flames

Fire Destroys $10,000 Home of Samuel Grubb on East and West Highway; Son of Family Saves Only Diamond Uniform He Had On.

Clad in baseball suits they were wearing in the games from which they were summoned, firemen from five Montgomery County volunteer companies saved a small garage, a barn and outbuildings when a blaze of unknown origin destroyed the $10,000 home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Grubb, near the East and West highway, connecting Silver Spring and Bethesda, near Sixteenth street extended, yesterday afternoon.

Hundreds of motorists were attracted to the scene and parked their machines for several miles along the thoroughfare to view the flames, which had gained rapid headway through the home before a call was telegraphed by Mrs. Robert Ray, a neighbor, in the absence of members of the Grubb family.

E. J. Sackett, of the Chevy Chase Volunteer Fire Department, and Lieut. Roland Yerrington, of the Bethesda company, were burned slightly in fighting the blaze, which necessitated the stringing of a hose line almost a mile for the only available water. All attempts to save the home proved futile, and attention was concentrated on the nearby structures.

The crucial baseball game between the Chevy Chase and the Kensington firemen on the Chevy Chase field was halted in the sixth inning when the alarm sounded. Another contest in the Montgomery County League, in which the Bethesda Firemen met the Takoma Tigers, composed of several Takoma Park firemen, had ended a short time earlier when they were called from the Silver Spring diamond.

On the latter field, Brooke Grubb, son of Mr. and Mrs. Grubb, was playing shortstop for the Silver Spring Giants in a game beginning with the Washington Red Sox when he was told his home was afire. He arrived to find it in ashes, with the baseball suit he was wearing his only possession saved.

Baseball players from nearby sandlots aided firemen from Fort Myer in extinguishing a brush fire west of Arlington National Cemetery. The fire was seen by motorists driving along the military road. The amount of damage was not reported.

Sing Sing Felons Save Four In Hudson, Return to Cells

2,200 Convicts Held Back as Gates Open to Let Quartet Rescue Police Chief, Brother-in-Law and Their Wives From Sinking Boat.

Ossining, N. Y., Aug. 10 (A.P.).—Four Sing Sing Prison inmates, released by their keepers in spite of prison regulations, spurned the chance of freedom today to rescue the chief of police of the New York Central Railroad and three other persons as their rowboat sank in the Hudson River.

Those saved were J. D. Roosa, the police chief; Mrs. Rosa; her brother, Albert Graff, and Mrs. Graff, all of Chappaqua, N. Y. Their rescuersw ere Anthony Triano, Irving Brown, Joseph Oates and David Weller, all short-term prisoners from New York.

When prison sentinels first saw the boat it was rapidly filling with water and the men were frantically pulling for shore. Sergeant of the Guard Alfred Mollitore risked the penalty for releasing prisoners nder any circmstance and called for volunteers. A large number responded.

Hrriedly selecting the four, who are members of the prison fire department, he gave them whispered instructions not to try to escape. Then, while machine gnners held the 2,200 other convicts in the recreation yard in check, the river front gate was swung open and the rescuers passed out.

Two of them jumped into the water and went to the aid of the boat's oc-so destructive as to warrant great alarm and that the relief measures taken are to date more of a preparatory nature. Further steps to alleviate the situation, it was said, will be held in abeyance pending receipt of more details from the twelve States most seriously affected.

Replies to President Hoover's invitation to twelve governors to attend the conference at the White House on Thursday had been received from all but Gov. Arthur J. Weaver of Nebraska. In a statement issued at Lincoln, said the Associated Press, Gov. Weaver said he would not attend the conference unless he was convinced Nebraska's farm areas had suffered extensively.

Four States Affected Less.

In issuing the call President Hoover listed Nebraska, Montana, Kansas and Iowa as having been less seriously affected among the twelve States. Unless today's reports warrant, it was said that no additional State heads would be asked to come.

Rain was expected in Kansas City, Kan., according to an Associated Press dispatch. Reports from other points in the Middle West and Southwest showed scant relief from the hot spell. Showers in St. Louis, Mo., cut the temperature from 100 to 87 degrees.

The readings remained high in much of Texas, although rain fell in the panhandle. ormal temperatures were reported in Oklahoma. Federal weather observers in Oklahoma City predicted a break in the drought.

Texas Farmers Hit Slightly.

George B. Terrell, Texas commission of agriculture in Austin, said there was no immediate suffering in the Lone Star State because of the drought. Farmers, he said, are in little worse shape than they were last year except for the low prices of farm produce.

Weather reports gathered from all quarters of the country by the Associated Press showed a temperate belt banding the Northern States from the Golden Gate to Newport. High pressure areas moved across the country, routing high temperatures before them.

Scattered showers, a month overdue in some places, fell in the corn territory. Parts of Iowa, Michigan, Wisconsin, Nebraska, Illinois and the Ohio River Valley were visited by rain.

Falls Also in Rockies.

Precipitation was also recorded in the Rocky Mountain and plateau regions and in the North and Middle Atlantic States. It was considered too light to be of much benefit to the crops, except in the vicinity of the Great Lakes, where various points had as much as a 1-inch fall.

Showers fell in the last 24 hours in Hannibal, Neosho and Noel, Mo., and Concordia, Kans.

Concern still obtains for the effects of the protracted aridity on the vegetable, grain and livestock trade and the dairy industry. Anxiety is still felt for dwindling water supplies and threatened curtained river navigation in many districts.

Vegetable Prices Up in New York

Drought Has Destroyed Crops of Many Plants, Merchant Says.

New York, Aug. 10 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—New York, cooled off somewhat today by a shower and breezes after eight blazing days, tomorrow will begin to feel the effects of the heat and drought in its pocketbook. Produce men announced that an acute shortage has been caused by the blight on upstate vegetable yield, and that consequently prices to the housewife will be doubled by Wednesday. This, it was estimated by William A. Diegel, president of A. E. Meyer & Co., commission merchants, will add at least $1,000,000 a day to the city's food bill.

Tomorrow also the announced one cent increase in the price of bottled milk goes into effect, slapping another $35,000 on New York's daily cost of living.

The vegetables affected by the drought are lettuce, string beans, green peas, cucumbers, salads and the bunch crops. The blazing sun has destroyed the late summer and faill yield in many sections up-State and has so dried out the plants that a poor quality has resulted.

Washington today. Tomorrow there will be increasing cloudiness, with moderate northwest and west winds.

Maryland and Virginia will also be further cooled today, says the prediction. There will be cloudiness tomorrow and gentle north and northwest winds.

The thermometer reached a peak of 89 at 9:30 yesterday morning which was the lowest high point in weeks. Official low for the day occured at 6 a. m. when 74 was registered.

Hourly registrations are as follows: 4 a. m., 78; 5 a. m., 76; 6 a. m., 74; 7 a. m., 76; 8 a. m., 78; 9 a. m., 86; 10 a. m., 86; 11 a. m., 85; noon, 88; 1 p. m., 87; 2 p. m., 85; 3 p. m., 87; 4 p. m., 87; 5 p. m., 86.

The kiosk on Pennsylvania avenue, which had registered 110 on Saturday, indicated 96 as the peak yesterday. This point was reached at 4 p. m. Low temperature of 80 degrees was registered at 6 o'clock in the morning.

Cooling breezes that fanned the city are credited with the lack of heat prostrations. None were reported all yesterday. Most of the city's populace journeyed to the adjacent countryside and seashore resorts.

Some time toward evening they decided to come home. Traffic policemen guessed that they all must have decided at the same time, for all the highways converging upon the city were gorged with automobiles. Difficulty was had in keeping the traffic moving, although officers managed to prevent any serious snarls. Long lines of cars poured over the bridges from Virginia, while the most of the traffic coming from the north was superintended by officers on all the arterial highways.

Prayers for rain were offered at services in all Protestant and Catholic Churches in the city. Special intercession was made in all churches of the Catholic archdiocese of Baltimore.

Rock Creek and Potomac Parks were crowded with family groups seeking the benefit of the breezes that came in from the northwest. Potomac Park, which has been an open air lodging place for thousands since the unprecedented heat wave, had a large quota of lodgers early last night.

Legge Starts Return For Drought Parley

Portland, Oreg., Aug. 10 (A.P.).—Chairman Alexander Legge, of the Federal Farm Board left tonight by train for Spokane from where he will go by air to Washington for President Hoover's drought conference Thursday.

Legge was summoned East after he left Secretary Hyde at Chicago, who returned for the conference. The Farm Board chairman has been here advising northwest wheat farmers to decrease their production.

HOOVER CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY AT CAMP

HOLDS ONE CONFERENCE

Orange, Va., Aug. 10 (A.P.).—Amid the quietness of his mountain camp, President Hoover today observed his fifty-sixth birthday in simple fashion.

The occasion was marked only by a birthday cake with 56 candles at dinner and by the presentation of gifts to the President by Mrs. Hoover and other guests at the week-end retreat.

It was a typical Hoover birthday, however, for he has long been opposed to ceremony upon such occasions.

The President spent the day quietly in relaxation after the strenuous activity of last week on relief plans for drought-stricken sections.

Part of the day was devoted to a conference on the drought with Secretary Hyde and Vice Chairman Stone of the Federal Farm Board.

The coolness of the rugged mountain camp was a welcome relief after the heat of Washington last week and the President enjoyed the change. He will leave early tomorrow for Washington to plunge again into the drought problems.

King George Felicitates President on Birthday

(Associated Press.)

King George of England yesterday felicitated President Hoover on his 56th birthday. He sent the following message to the White House:

"It is with great pleasure, Mr. President, that I offer you on the occasion of your birthday my warmest felicitations, together with my sincere good wishes for your continued health and happiness."

Earth Will Cross Path of eMteors

Perseid Stream Across Orbit of Earth 70,000,000 Miles Wide, Estimate.

New York, Aug. 10 (A.P.).—The earth will clash into the heart of the Perseid meteor stream tomorrow night. Flying through space in a stream estimated at 70,000,000 miles wide, these meteors for years have preserved the same thicknd cloud in the same portion of their wide path.

Facing northeast, an observed may begin looking for them low on the horizon after sunset, but the best time to look is after midnight, and fairly high overhead. They stream from the position of the constellation Perseus, after which they are named.

Their orbit is computed to be nerally perpendicular to that of the earth, which spends a month from mid July to mid August in cutting across the stream. This meteor river reaches out an immense distance into space.

Oswald Thomas, the astronomer, says they travel in an inclosed, elliptical ring as far beyond the orbit of Neptune as the distance from the sun to the orbit of Uranus. Thomas's figures and the latese estimates of Pluto's orbit would indicate that these meteors travel outward somewhere near to Pluto's front yard.

U. S. HOPES TO CUT BRITISH VISA FEES

ed waived the rule that each applicant for a visa must appear personally before an American consul.

The State Department in replay politely but firmly declined the request unless the British would enter into a reciprocal visa agreement for former service men. Ignoring the State Department's rging for such an agreement, the British government in a second note last week pointed out instances under which a precedent had been set by the department in granting previously visas under a partial gruop system.

In its most recent note, which has just been handed Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British Ambassador, the department has again emphatically declined the request unless the British will enter into a reciprocal agreement. The British request for the waiver of appearance at a consulate was made on the grounds that the legionnaires were scattered over all parts of the United Kingdom. The department, in refusing this request, pinted out that the American Government manitains sixteen consulates in the United Kingdom, any of which is authorized to issue a visa.

Department officials are hopeful the firm refusal in the present instance may result in an agreement on waiver or reduction of cost for former servicemen and will eventually lead to a more extensive visa agreement covering all types of travelers.

70-MILE GALE HITS CITIES IN KENTUCKY

One Person Is Killed and Seven Injured; Damage Put at $250,000.

LIGHTNING BRINGS FIRES

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 10 (A.P.).—A 70-mile gale struck Louisville and surrounding territory last night, killed one person, injured seven and caused property damage estimated at more than $250,000. The storm hit Lexington a short time later and lightning fired a barn at the Kentucky Association race track. Sixteen thoroughbreds and the structure were destroyed with loss set at $55,000.

A 14-year-old Negro boy was killed at New Albany, Ind., across the Ohio River from Louisville, when his skull was cruahed by a falling tree limb. The seven persons injured included four Louisville firemen hurt while fighting fires caused by the storm.

The storm struck Louisville in the early evening, the rapid sweep of the wind was followed by the wailing of fire sirens in all parts of the city, as anxious property owners summoned firemen to extinguish fires or remove falling trees that blocked traffic at various places.

One Louisville building worth $50,000 collapsed, and another valued at $25,000 was struck by lightning and destroyed by fire. The loss at New Albany and Jeffersonville, Ind., was set at $100,000.

Very little rain accompanied the storm, hence it failed to break the five-month drought. Light rains fell in Kentucky today but they were of slight value to crops.

Ship Inspections Increased by U. S.

Passenger Boats Must Be Given at Least Four Each Year.

In addition to the regular annual inspection, all passenger-carrying steamships entering American ports must now undergo three reinspections every navigating season or within the year for which the United States Steamboat Inspection Service issues a certificate.

This fact was disclosed last night by Dickerson N. Hoover, supervising inspector general, in a radio address over the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Another new rule recently put into force requires the master of every inspected passenger vessel to drill and exercise his cerw—except females—at intervals of not less than three months, in pulling oars in the ship's lifeboats. In addition, the crews of motor-propelled boats are required to demonstrate their ability in the workin of the enigne and handling of the boat nuder power.

made Saturday by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Putnam, of 108 Eighth street southeast. Earlier in the week the couple had tentatively identified Irvin and Bennet, and they returned yesterday to police headquarters to say that they were certain that this pair was in the car they followed to Lincoln Park on the afternoon of the robbery.

Capital Woman Held In Assault on Husband

Mrs. Kathleen Burford, 21 years old, of Fourteenth street near Girard street northwest, was booked at the Essex police station in Baltimore last night on charges of assaulting and striking her husband, Gordon Burford, 26 yars old, with a monkey wrench, while riding through that city en route to Washington from Lonesome Pine Beach, Md.

The charge was preferred against her by Policeman laude Waddell, who reported that the incident occurred during an argument between Mrs. Burford and her husband.

PAPER SAYS CAPONE SUPREME IN CHICAGO

"Bugs" Moran Abdicated From North Side Control, Is Belief.

KEEPS SMALL RACKETS

Chicago, Aug. 10.—The Herald and Examiner said tonight that the killing of Jack Zuta, reputed "brains" of the "Bugs" Moran gang, had put Al "Scarface" Capone in supreme command of Chicago's illicit liquor, vice and gambling operations.

The paper said that Moran had abdicated from his steadily weakening control of the near North Side section and that this district was now being run by Teddy Newberry, once a Moran follower, but now affiliated with Capone. Newberry is one of the persons sought in connection with the Zuta killing.

The Herald and Examiner offered the following explanation of the situation it said now existed:

"At the start of the year, with Capone in a Philadelphia prison, Moran, aided by the Aiello brothers, Newberry, Leo Mongoven, Frankie Foster, Willie Marks, Benny Bennett and Zuta, held sway on the near North Side. Newberry handled the liquor interests of the gang, with Bennett as his assistant, but Zuta is understood to have engineered the demoting of Newberry and the placing of Solly Vision in his job. Then one night Moran called Bennett for a conference, and Bennett has not been seen or heard from since. A meeting of the gang chiefs was called and demands for the removal of Zuta—never popular personally—were made. Moran refused. Foster, Newberry, and Marks thereupon left the gang. Mongoven is believed dead. The Aiellos—reported at the time of Capone's release from jail to be ready to desert Moran—are thought now to have done so. And Zuta has been slain. This leaves Moran virtually deserted of his leading lieutenants."

The paper understands, it said, that Moran would be allowed to retain some of his minor rackets, such as the organization of various labor groups and small shopkeepers.

With such a condition in the underworld, the paper charged that police had ceased harassing gambling houses, speakeasies and vice resorts and that the Capone gang had gotten back to what the newspaper calls "the serious business of making bigger money than ever before."

Beacon to Herald Royal Birth Soon

Huge Fire to Be Lit When Duchess of York Again Becomes Mother.

Glamis, Scotland, Aug. 10 (A.P.).—Burning of a huge pile of fallen trees and brushwood which towers above Glamis will convey to remote villages far into the heart of the Grampian range the news that a child has been born to the Duchess of York in gray Glamis Castle, when the eagerly-awaited event occurs.

Villagers had expected to be able to dash up the slopes of Hunters Hill and light the beacon before now, and they share the eagerness felt all over England for the word which will enable them to do so. They believe that the pile may be fired at any hour.

The Duke of York has been staying close to Glamis Castle and home Secretary Clines, who must be in the house when the birth occurs, has remained close by. Villagers believe these signs are not to be ignored, and that soon the hilltop flame that in old days would have announced the advent of some hostile raiding party will proclaim the news that a royal prince or princess has been born.

Twin Murder Seen In Finding Bodies

Remains of Farmer and Wife Discovered in Grave by Four Youths.

Stow, Mass., Aug. 10 (A.P.).—The bodies of William Stefanovicz, Stow farmer, and his wife, missing since May, were discovered in a shallow grave in a woodlot near the farm by four youths late today. Detective Edward P. O'Neill said it was a double murder.

The youths were attracted to the spot by the barking of a hunting dog. The disappearance of the couple first attracted attention from State and county authorities this week. Joe Stefanosky, a farm hand, employed by Stefanovicz, had told neighbors the couple had gone to Chicago. Meanwhile he took charge of the farm and disappeared a few days ago. Police said he took with him $800 cash in rents and the proceeds from auctioned cattle.

The discovery of the bodies recalled the disappearance of a previous owner of the farm, "Tiger" Hale, 70 years ago. He was believed to have been killed, robbed of $4,000 and his body tossed into quicksand.

GERMAN DIPLOMAT CRITICIZES POLAND

Incident Feared as Official Expresses Grief Over Boundary Cut-Up.

CITES WILSON IN SPEECH

Berlin, Aug. 10 (A.P.).—A diplomatic incident between Germany and Poland was feared today from an extremely outspoken speech by Gotfried Treviranus, reich minister of the occupied regions, on the subject of Germany's eastern frontiers.

Herr Treviranus said that Germans "grieved from the bottom of their hearts for the cut-up Vistula regions, this unhealed wound in the eastern flank of Germany."

He told his audience, meeting in front of the reichstag to celebrate the tenth anniversary of the plebiscite in East and West Prussia, that they would remember "the iniquitous pressure put upon President Wilson to make him agree to the unnatural amputation of East Prussia."

Deplores Danzig Situation.

"You will remember the hybrid condition to which German Danzig has been reduced," he said. "Our eyes see with joy the regions that have been restored to us, but with grief the German land which today is lost to us, but which will one day be recaptured."

He said Germany's eastern boundary was "an unjust frontier under foreign sovereignty."

Warsaw, Poland, Aug. 10 (A.P.).—The Socialist leader Stanczyk, a member of the Polish Parliament, in the Warsaw newspaper Robotnik today declared that nobody in Poland, and especially not the proletarian classes, would ever tolerate any attempt against the inviolability of Poland's frontiers, and particularly of the Polish corridor.

Death to Agriculture.

His article was taken as in the nature of an official party declaration. He said any such attempt against the corridor would mean the economic cutting off of Poland from the rest of the world and a death sentence for Polish agriculture and industry.

Pacifists of other countries, he said, were making projects for the solution of the corridor problem, but he described propaganda for cession of the corridor to Germany as "not peace propaganda but war propaganda."

Paris, Aug. 10 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—In recent Russo-German negotiations in Moscow there was talk of military collaboration between Germany and Soviet Russia, and also of the Polish question and the Danzing corridor to the sea, according to reports received here from Berlin.

Former Finance Minister von Raumer headed the German delegation, which included Von Moltke. Extreme importance was attached to the parleys.

Russia Alliance Hinted.

Less was heard, however, of another German delegation working in Moscow at the same time, also under the direction of Raumer. While the main delegation concentrated on discussion of commercial and economic questions, the other is said to have discussed matters of a political and military nature with a view to development and extension of Germany's existing conventions with the Soviets.

Now that Germany's chief preoccupations on her eastern frontier are removed by evacuation of the Rhineland and the putting into operation of the Young plan, the Reich is represented as turning to eastern frontier problems for solution. She therefore is thought to regard tightening of her relations with Russia as desirable.

Broad hints of an alliance in the making are given, while l'Intransigeant, Paris newspaper, connects the Russo-German negotiations with Moscow's ambitions in Poland and Roumania.

Dry Repeal Plank In New York Seen

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler Predicts Action by State Convention.

New York, Aug. 10 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler prophesied today that the Republican State convention this year will adopt a declaration in favor of the repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Probably 60 per cent of the membership of the convention—by September, perhaps 70 per cent—will favor such a declaration, he said in a statement issued from his summer home at Southampton, Long Island.

If there are drys who feel they can not support the candidates of a party pledged to repeal, they are not Republicans but prohibitionists, he said, and "both logically and ethically" should join a separate party. He estimated the possible Republican loss from such an exodus at 100,000 votes.

Dr. Butler has told friends that he will press for the approval of a repeal plank, similar to that of Dwight W. Morrow in New Jersey, and that if he is defeated in the resolutions committee he will carry the fight to the floor of the convention.

AMERICAN PRELATE LAMBETH PREACHER

Bishop Perry, Episcopalians' Leader in U. S., Signally Honored in London.

PARLEY IN ABBEY ENDS

London, England, Aug. 10 (A.P.).—An American bishop, the Right Rev. James DeWolf Perry, today delivered the sermon at the closing of the seventh Lambeth conference of the Anglican Church in Westminster Abbey—the first time an American has been so honored in the history of the Lambeth meeting.

The conference opened July 5 and was attended by Episcopal churchmen from all over the world.

Dr. Perry, who is Bishop of Rhode Island and presiding bishop of the Episcopal Church in the United States, spoke on spiritual authority.

Procession Is Colorful.

A colorful procession of bishops and archbishops marked the closing thanksgiving service. Led by the Archbishop of Canterbury, all the delegates gathered in the historic abbey cloisters and marched into the abbey through the great west door. The gorgeous ecclesiastical robes of the archbishops and their train bearers, in ceremonious attendance, furnished an impressive close to the work of the conference.

In the farewell sermon, Bishop Perry said the church now was reaching a degree of unity greater than has been known for centuries.

"The impression made by our Lord's first public utterance was of finality," he said. "Before the words that had been spoken could be comprehended, there was recognition of the voice which spoke as having authority, not as the scribes. Authority was a matter not unfamiliar to those whom he addressed.

Credentials Held Established.

"The credentials of the Teacher, then, as always, were found in the sources of His doctrines; and the scribes of that and every age have been engaged in verifying the spoken word with chapter and verse. The world has its own treasure of authorities and its own judgment to pronounce on those who contravene them.

* * *

"The authority which the world will heed and finally accept is that which proceeds from unity. The supreme reason for the need of reunion today is the same as that which Christ named in His prayer, 'That they all may be one in order that the world may believe.' The church is now reaching a degree of unity greater than has been known for centuries. When the spirit of unity is perfect the voice of authority will be complete."

Stealing Safe Was Easy, But Moving It Was Task

Chicago, Aug. 10 (A.P.).—The problem in this robbery was not so much to steal the three thousand, but to get away with it.

A robber quartet had taken possession of a bulky safe at a beverage concern, but could not budge it. With no time to bicker, they released four employers who had been locked in a closet and forced the victims to help trundle the safe onto a waiting truck. This problem disposed of, the holdup men drove away with the safe which contained $3,000 in currency.

DIVER FINDS BODIES OF TRIO IN AIR CRASH

Two Girls and Aviator Died in Chicago When Plane Plunged Through Tank.

LIGHTNING THEORY HELD

Chicago, Aug. 10 (A.P.).—A deep-sea diver today recovered the bodies of the two girl passengers and pilot of an airplane that plunged through a gigantic steel tank and sank in the waters underneath in one of the most unusual accidents in aviation history.

The victims were identified as Mary Laws, 25, a bank employe; her sister, Eugenia Laws, 22, a stenographer, and Orville Suchy, the pilot, who six weeks ago received his transport license.

Investigators believe the plane was struck by lightning yesterday afternoon as it maneuvered laboriously through the squall that swept in suddenly from Lake Michigan. Witnesses said there was a blinding flash of lightning, and a moment later the ship, its wings buckled helplessly against the fuselage, dropped straight down from a 1,000-foot altitude.

The plane cleft through the metal platings of the roof and base of the huge tank filled with illuminating gas and sank in 40 feet of water in the underlying pit. Police lines were formed to restrain the thousands of curious. A lighting system was hurriedly rigged and firemen cut holes to permit the diver to reach the wreckage.

Paying $5, the Laws sisters went aloft at the municipal airport in the plane, The Magic Carpet, for their first and what proved to be their last jaunt through the clouds.

An inquest has been tentatively set for tomorrow by Coroner Herman N. Bundsen.

R-100 LEAVES MAST ON 900-MILE FLIGHT

Transatlantic Dirigible to Visit Ottawa, Toronto and West Ontario.

WILL RECROSS SEA SOON

St. Hubert Airport, Montreal, Aug. 10 (A.P.).—The British dirigible R-100, conqueror of the Atlantic, soared away from its mooring mast tonight for a 900-mile flight over Ottawa, Toronto and western Ontario.

Squadron Leader R. S. Booth is in command and a number of distinguished Canadian officers and guests are aboard. The ship is expected to tie up again here Monday night and refueling operations for its return to England will begin at once.

After gliding up the St. Lawrence River, the R-100 sailed over the harbor of Montreal and started for Ottawa along the course of the Ottawa River. The ship was expected to pause above the capital for half an hour and to dip its nose over the Peace Tower in a salute to Canada's war heroes.

Leaving Ottawa, the dirigible was to turn toward Toronto and is expected to reach there at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning. It is scheduled to circle above the city for 30 minutes and continue its flight to Hamilton. The course then is down the Niagara Peninsula to Niagara Falls and back to St. Hubert.

Weather forecasts for the trip were favorable, although it was indicated the atmosphere would be "bumpy." The work of releasing the airship from its mast was carried out with ease.

A PICTURE NO ROBOT CAN PAINT!

ONE cannot produce art without feeling. Hence the inadequacy of mechanical rendition of music as a substitute for Living Music.

Life—glamour—excitement are fundamental requirements of the theatre. There is drama in the artist's struggle to please and in the emotional response of the audience.

The intelligent theatre goer enjoys the thrill of the artist's presence, and the feeling that his presence, too, is felt. He is a participant in the event—a critic of the performance, empowered to reward excellence and to reprove fault.

* * *

Music supplied this life, this human contact for the motion picture theatre until the coming of Canned Music.

The purely mechanical theatre represents the climax of a new spirit in the theatrical business, one that takes the docility of the patron too much for granted. His money is required, therefore he must be given a show. "But," says the exploiter, "let's give him no more than we must."

PESHAWAR, KEY CITY IN NORTH INDIA, ATTACKED BY TRIBESMEN

against Peshawar and that the reported intention of the Afridis to storm the city was merely a ruse, spread by spies, to distract attention from a more dangerous attack upan the air force field at Risalpur.

The correspondent does not say whether the attack materialized.

All trains running out of Peshawar on the main line to Nowshera have been stopped to facilitate military operations.

Other bands of Afridis, armed and equipped for rapid movement, are reputed still coming across the Afghanistan frontier.

Calcutta, India, Aug. 10 (A.P.).—Several persons were injured today in a fight between Moslems and some civil disobedience volunteers from Peshawar during a dispute at a conference of Bengal Moslems.

The whole meeting was marked by disorder. Mr. Abdurrahim, member of the All-India Congress committee, opposed a resolution supporting Moslem representation at the October round-table conference in London.

The meeting promptly howled him down. Fazl Ul Haq, president of the conference, appealed to the delegates to show a united front to both the government, which was forgetful of the loyalty and devotion of the Moslems, and the Hindus, who were anxious to ignore Moslem claims.

LIVE SELLING MOVE HITS CURB MARKET

Utilities Rise Until Friday, When General Break in Prices Occurs.

FORD, LTD., IS FEATURE

New York, Aug. 10. (A.P.)—The curb market drifted into a lively selling movement last week. Dull trading in the earlier sessions found the market rather steady, but the renewal of bearish activity on the big board Friday and Saturday was accompanied by similar moves on the junior exchange, although the declines on the curb were less drastic.

Speculative activity was dormant until the market slid into the week-end break. There were flurries of interest in the utilities, some of which rallied feebly, only to close the week substantially lower. A bullish demonstration in Ford of England, the market feature on several days, pushed the price up several points, but the stock lost most of its gain.

Resistance points in the utilities were quickly penetrated in the Friday break. American Gas & Electric, which had crossed 140 and been firm around 137, broke well below 130 before encountering support, thereby surrendering much of the advance piled up during the past fortnight. Electric Bond & Share slumped to within less than half a dozen points of its year's low. United Light "A" was fairly steady, but American Superpower, another leading member of the group, was steady.

Oils were mostly quiet, although they yielded readily in the thin trading. Cosden, which had been receiving pool support, lost several points, and Gulf and Humble kept it company. Cities Service was in supply throughout most of the week.

The investment company group, which is regarded in some quarters as a fair barometer of speculative sentiment, eased. Goldman Sachs Trading was the feature, sliding to a new low under 16. United Founders held firm around 17 until late in the week; when it yielded nearly a point before recovering. Blue Ridge and Shenandoah were heavy.

With the exception of Ford, Ltd., there was little activity in the specialties and industrials. Deere and Gleaner Harvester moved lower in sympathy with the tone of farm implement shares on the stock exchange. Zonite made a new low.

Couple Wed in Ceremony Made Possible by Suicide

Young Widow Married to Brother of Man Who Killed Himself and Chronicled His Last Moments in Gas-Filled Room.

Newark, N. J., Aug. 10 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Less than four months after Henry Keller committed suicide that his bride might be free to marry his brother, the wedding ceremony which he died to make possible was performed today, and Mrs. Florence Wolfert Keller became the wife of her late husband's brother, Edward Keller. The marriage took place in the Degroot Methodist Episcopal Church here with the Rev. William Harper officiating.

Henry Keller was 22 years old, a clerk in the office of the Pie Bakers of America, and lived in a rooming house in Newark. For ten years he and his brother Edward had been inseparable—until he married Florence in Philadelphia last December and took her back to Newark.

"A few weeks after the marriage," Edward told police after Henry's suicide. "We found that we—Florence and myself—loved one another. I told my brother so. He said he would give her a divorce on any grounds she wanted. He seemed miserable at the news. Then he began threatening suicide. He always kept his promises."

He kept his suicide promise early on the morning of April 26, but not until he had done his best to make his wife and brother suffer by telling them they were responsible.

"Went to Ed's office to make him suffer physically a little," he wrote the day before he killed himself. "He wasn't there. Went downstairs to car. They were there—told them again. They laughed, but I could see fear in their eyes."

Then, as the illuminating gas he was inhaling began to take effect, he made his unsteady hand write down his impressions:

"I took my panacea for all human ills. It won't be long now. I'll bet Florence and Ed are having uneasy dreams * * * ten minutes later—my head is hot. I'm perspiring and shaky—brain is still clear, though wonder who will add up the pies tomorrow.

"Still the same, 1:45—hope I pass out by 2 a. m.

"Gee, I loved you so much, Florence. It's now 2:15. I feel very tired and a bit dizzy. I have the gas nozzle plastered on my face but disconnected from the gas jet. It's quite uncomfortable, damn it. My brain is very clear. I can see that my head is shaking—it is hard to die when one is young. How I wish oblivion would hurry——"

There his chronicle of suicide ended.

Mrs. Keller wore a pink dress and straw hat for her marriage today, and carried a large bouquet of pink roses.

BOND PRICES EQUAL HIGH OF MARCH 21

SAG LASTED 15 WEEKS

The vacation season, which with dull tradings has brought stock prices on the New York Stock Exchange to a standstill, has witnessed bond prices climbing in the past five weeks to equal, at last week's close, the 1929-1930 high of 101.6. From the March 21 high of 101.6, bond prices sagged for fifteen weeks to 100.6 on July 1, an average weekly drop of 0.07 per cent, compared with a weekly rise of 0.20 per cent in the five weeks from July 1 to date.

Of the seventy bonds in the Irving Fisher selection, 51 per cent were up in price at last week's close, 19 per cent off and 30 per cent steady. The average daily value of trading in bonds on the stock exchange dropped by 9 per cent to a record low in the last two years.

The index of all bonds rose by 0.19 per cent last week, as first-grade rails (up by 0.44 per cent) and public utilities (up by 0.40 per cent) rose to new 1929-1930 highs. Second-grade rails (up by 0.22 per cent) continue to make substantial gains over the recent low on July 2. Industrial bonds were up by 0.06 per cent; U. S. Government bonds held steady, as foreign government bonds dropped by 0.05 per cent.

STOCK PRICE INDEX DECLINES 8 POINTS

Slump During Narrow and Dull Trading Proves to Be Unexpected.

BANK SUPPORT LACKING

New York, Aug. 10 (A.P.).—Bulls collapsed under the scorching drought in last week's stock market, while the bears thrived on it like dromedaries.

The bull campaign launched after Fourth of July found itself back where it started. Save for the low levels of June and the first few days of July, stocks were the lowest since last Christmas. Some prominent bulls decided to suspend operations until after Labor Day.

The price index of 90 shares lost about 8 points, net, during the week, about three-quarters of which was lost in Friday's severe decline. The index ended the week at 160.8, the lowest since July 8, about 12 points below the peak of the rally from the June lows, first reached July 18, and less than 7 points from the year's low record on June 24.

The downturn on Friday came after five sessions of dull trading and narrow and indeterminate price movements. Twice this year, in early June and last week, the market has broken out of a narrow and dull trading area with a sharp decline, which is entirely contrary to Hoyle. Extremely dull periods during the past several years have usually been periods of accumulation when the groundwork for a rise has been laid. It used to be almost axiomatic never to sell a dull market short.

Business News Discouraging.

Bear drives appear to have been the impelling force for each decline, but severe bear pressure has been exerted only after bulls have failed. Furthermore, business news each time has been discouraging and prompted some general liquidation.

The latest bull campaign appeared to have been handicapped from the start, for in addition to the public being discouraged after the June drop, some important bankers are understood to have felt that the campaign was premature, and while not opposing it, to have withheld active support.

While the effects of the severe drought over much of the country's best farming country remain problematical, this very uncertainty proved a major bearish factor. On Monday, a substantial spurt in the grain markets, predicated almost entirely on crop damage, was at first glance regarded in the stock market as of bullish import, but thereafter traders were less inclined to regard far-reaching crop failure as favoring general business recovery in the autumn, although it may have broken the disturbing depression in the grain markets.

Warner Dividend Passed.

The crash on Friday came as the result of an accumulation of developments. The omission of the Warner Bros. common dividend, while forecast for several weeks, was the straw that broke the market's back, and the cotton market was brought down on top of it by a better than expected crop report as of August 1.

The almost negligible public participation in the stock market was indicated by failure of huge bunched selling orders to appear at today's opening, after a crash such as Friday's. Bankers expressed little concern over the new decline, pointing out that no general impairment of purchasing power would result.

There was a feeling in Wall street at the close of the week that after the readjustments necessitated by this last decline in prices the market would be in for another resting spell, despite the fact that the recent low level of business has been costing large commission houses severe losses in maintaining their organizations.

U. S. Liner In Collision.

Southampton, England, Aug. 10 (A.P.).—The United States Lines Ship American Farmer, bound from London to New York, was in collision last night at the mouth of the English Channel with the German steamer Lichtenstein.

The American ship was only slightly damaged, but put back to Southampton for examination. She lay in the Solent tonight after having transferred her passengers this afternoon to the United States Liner Leviathan.

The ship will go into dry dock tomorrow. The Lichtenstein reported she was not in need of assistance, and escaped practically unharmed.

The collision occurred shortly after 10 p. m. The ships were about 20 miles southwest of The Lizard, a headland in Cornwall at the mouth of the channel.

RAIL BONDS ADVANCE TO 1930 PRICE PEAK

Institutional Demands for Highest-Grade Issues Push Quotations Up.

NEW BONDS AVAILABLE

New York, Aug. 10 (A.P.).—Seasoned issues are still the favorites on the bond market. New offerings were small last week and the continued institutional demand for high-grade bonds forced prices up appreciably. The gains made by railroad obligations and to a lesser degree, utilities, set a new high price mark for 1930 as measured by the averages.

Although the bond market was not expected in most quarters to do more than hold its own during the August vacation period, prime corporation bonds have been working steadily toward higher levels. There is a wide spread between their price position and second and third grade issues, but little change in this situation is expected until the investing public shows more interest. Institutions are doing most of the bidding and are taking only bonds that can be quickly liquidated.

The situation last week was favorable to an acceleration in the upward move. Only $70,940,000 in new offerings, including a $30,000,000 note issue, was marketed. Credit conditions and commodity prices showed little change. In addition new funds were available for reinvestment.

Activity Continues Normal.

Activity was about normal for midsummer. Despite the cautiousness of institutional buyers, their inquiry for standard issues influenced a steady advance in prices. Heading the procession, both in price movement and trading, were good railroad obligations, which on several days set new highs for the year in the averages.

On the two days the gains made by carrier obligations boosted the average price level to new 1930 highs. For some time the market has hovered around the mark established last March, but it was not until last week that the spring record was surpassed.

Inquiry for foreign bonds slackened somewhat and the price level was little disturbed. Stock privilege issues and speculative bonds moved lower, with some sharp breaks occurring on Friday when pressure in the share market virtually erased the gains made the past few weeks.

Savings Bank Deposits Gain.

Among the developments of the week which may influence the future course of bonds were the reports showing large increases in deposits of savings banks and commercial financial institutions and the resumption of buying of Government securities by the New York Federal Reserve Bank. The Reserve's action was influenced by the gold exports and was in line with its policy of maintaining easy credit conditions.

Bond men regarded the $273,000,000 increase in mutual savings banks deposits during the first six months as an indication of the huge fund available for investment in bonds.

In citing the large increase in the volume of "other securities" held by banks during the last quarter, the Federal Reserve Board said the swing to bonds was natural in view of the yields available, in contrast with low interest rates on open market loans. Bond men expect bank buying will continue until the current ease in money abates.

Prophet to Lead U. S. Back to God Is Asked

Crime Wave Exists Because People Are Forgetting Religion, Minister From Fort Wayne Declares at Gathering of Masons.

America's crime wave came in for a searching analysis at Temple Heights yesterday afternoon, when Dr. John R. Gunn, of Fort Wayne, Ind., a Baptist minister, discussed the subject before a large gathering of Masons and their families. His general idea was that the so-called crime wave is only a symptom of the general unrighteousness of the Nation. He prayed for a prophet to bring the Nation back to God. A summary of what Dr. Gunn said follows:

"None of you, I am sure, would consider President Hoover an alarmist, but several months ago he issued to the country a most alarming statement, in which he called attention to the fact that 9,000 human beings were slain in America last year. This is fifty times as many persons as were slain in Great Britain. His statement further said that there were twenty times as many robberies committed in this country as in Great Britain.

"Our record for law observance stands no comparison with that of stable nations. Life and property are not safe in this country. No one will deny that we have an acute crime problem in the United States. It is more than that. It is not a mere wave. 'We are facing a national necessity of the first degree,' said President Hoover. 'The wave of crime now sweeping over the Nation must give us pause to consider if there has not been a subsidence of the foundations.'

"This statement gave me great concern when it was made, and has been present in my thoughts much of the time since. 'If the foundations are destroyed, what can the righteous do?'

"America does not need a reorganization of the machinery which we have set up for the control of crime. That is not the real remedy for the situation. What our country needs is to come back to the foundations—to a belief in God and to practice of the virtues of religion. Our fundamental trouble in America is a subsidence of our religious faith, teaching and ideals.

"The crime wave is only a symptom. Irreligion, irreverence for God, unwillingness to be bound by His moral code constitute the real evil. Multitudes of our people have lost the sense of God. They have forgotten their maker and are worshiping idols.

"It is not to be wondered at that the Nation is cursed with crimes of all sorts in all walks of life and affecting people of every grade of society. When people forget God, those things follow as a natural result. When people turn their backs on the Author of all law and order, and give loose rein to their own evil passions and desires, personal, social, commercial and political integrity go.

"On no other foundation, save on a God of law and order, can a righteous nation be built. We must come back to the foundations of God.

"I am no pessimist. I do not believe that the whole country is going to the bad. But the spiritual condition of our country is so diseased that it is a fertile soil for every sort of iniquity. It is producing an abundant harvest of every kind of crime, which is daily paraded before the country in the daily press.

"What constitutes this soil? Minds and hearts and lives where there is no place for God. That is the root of all our troubles, the cause of all lack of morals and looseness in our social life, which are causing such widespread concern.

"When people dismiss God from their lives and consciousness they dismiss every holy thought, every holy ideal, and every holy thing that stays them from doing evil. In the soil of Godless hearts every iniquity springs, and what America now needs is to break up that soil and plant God in these hearts, and when that is done you will see a new Nation.

"In America we need no business awakening. I don't think any one will say that American business men are not wide awake. But we do need a spiritual awakening. We do need a revival of religion. We do need to get God back into the hearts of the people.

"Religion is the foundation on which this American Nation was built. The President of Argentina made a study to see why his country and why South America generally were so far behind North America. They both had about the same natural advantages, but our land has far outstripped theirs. At the end of his investigation he reached this conclusion: 'The Spanish came to South America looking for gold; the British went to North America looking for God.'

"In these latter times, I think that perhaps we are looking more for gold than for God. The ideals of our fathers are being rapidly eclipsed by ideals of money power and material greatness. Materialism is the curse of America. The drift of our age is away from God, from all ideals that have lifted the race up.

"Again I say that I am not a pessimist. Somehow I can never believe that God is going to let loose of this Nation, that He will let the United States break down. But you know what happened to Israel. They broke down, says Jeremiah the prophet, 'because they forsook the covenant of Jehovah their God and worshipped other gods.'

"Wake up, America! Forsake your evil ways! Put away your false doctrines, and return to God!

"Oh for a prophet to bring a revival of religion to America, to bring us back to our Bible, to restore the old family altar and to lead the people back to God."

"Corpse" in Auto Seat Found Alive

Virginia Police Stop Car on Notice From District Authorities.

A lookout sent by Washington police for a car supposed to be bearing a corpse to Richmond, Va., was canceled yesterday after Virginia police reported that they had stopped the car and found no body. A report came to police headquarters here early yesterday that occupants of the machine, with a dead man in the rumble seat, had stopped in Washington to ask their way.

Fredericksburg, Va., police overhauled the sought car and reported that there was a man in the rumble seat, but that he was not dead. The car bore Maryland tags, which were listed to a man living in Baltimore. He was out of the Maryland city on a visit to Virginia Beach, it was said.

The report came to Washington police from a taxi driver, Russell G. Flynn, of 606 I street northwest, who in turn got it from a fare, he carried from Ninth street and Mount Vernon place to Thirty-first and O streets northwest. Flynn's fare said that the occupants of the Maryland machine asked directions and gave him a ride, but put him out of the car when he began to ask about the recumbent form in the rear of the auto.

Charlottesville, Va., Aug. 10.—The speaker at the vesper service of the Institute of Public Affairs at the University of Virginia this evning was Dr. J. Stuart Holden, head of the China Inland Mission and pastor of St. Paul's Church, London, England, who had for his subject, "The Gospel According to Christ's Enemies." A spiritual, evangelical leader of wide note, Dr. Holden has attended many conferences in this country, speaking especially on world missions.

Despite record breaking temperatures, which prevailed nearly every day, attendance upon the sessions of the institute for the first week was larger than last year. Papers were presented by selected men from Massachusetts to Texas.

The program for the second week, opening tomorrow morning, will bring to the university recognized leaders and research workers and outstanding men and women in practical politics and public service. The first evening address will be by Will Durant, who will have for his subject, "Is Democracy a Failure?" On Tuesday night, Martin J. Insull, senior vice president of the Middle West Utilities Co., will make a public address on "Holding Companies and Their Relation to Regulation."

Government Ownership Topic.

Government ownership and operation is to be discussed Wednesday morning before the round table on "Business and Government," under the leadership of Clarence A. Dykstra, city manager of Cincinnati. Mr. Insull speaks at this time, as does Norman Thomas, Socialist nominee for the Presidency. This will be open only to members who enroll for this round table, but the public will have an opportunity to hear Mr. Thomas that night when he speaks on "Basic Requirements for an Effective Democracy."

Discussion groups will begin debating questions of national interest at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning. Speakers at the round table on "Business and Government" will be John Bauer, of the American Public Utilities Bureau, New York, and Mason Mangum, managing director of the Richmond (Va.) Chamber of Commerce.

At the same hour national country life questions will be treated by Prof. C. R. Hoffer, of Michigan State College, and by W. N. Neff, president of the Vance Supply Co., Inc., Abingdon, Va.

The question selected for discussion at the first open forum of the week is: "For the Best Interests of the United States, Is This, So-called Roosevelt Doctrine Either Necessary or Desirable?" The leader will be Dr. Clarence H. Haring, professor of Latin-American History and Economics at Harvard University, and the principal speaker, Dr. James Brown Scott, of Washington, D. C., secretary of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

Portrait to Be Presented.

The afternoon session tomorrow will be given over to the presentation to the university of a portrait of Dr. Charles Gilmore Maphis, director of the institute. The presentation will be made by Dr. James B. Scott, and the acceptance by Dr. Edwin A. Alderman, president of the university. The portrait, a gift of Chester D. Pugsley, a Peekskill, N. Y., banker and member of the board of advisers of the Institute of Public Affairs, is the work of Seymour M. Stone, of New York City.

Oswald Garrison Villard, editor of the Nation, will be the open forum speaker Tuesday, and the following day, at the same hour, 11 o'clock, the question to be considered will be "Can and Should the Eighteenth Amendment Be Enforced?" The speakers will be Dr. Ernest H. Cherrington, secretary of the national executive committee of the Antisa' on League, and Mrs. Marion Booth Kelley, an officer in the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform.

Other Speakers During Week.

Other speakers this week will be Edwin S. Evans, president of the Detroit Aircraft Corporation; Dr. Arthur W. Hewitt, of Plainfield, Vt., who will speak on the "Country Church and World Democracy," and Mrs. D. Leigh Colvin, president of the New York State W. C. T. U., who will discuss "Law Enforcement."

At Thursday's open forum, Ben H. Spence, of the Toronto (Canada) Daily Star, will tell of the Canadian liquor control systems.

The country churches and their relationship to the farm family, mission lands, world peace and world democracy, will be discussed during the week by Dr. Edwin V. O'Hara, director of the Rural Life Bureau, National Catholic Welfare Conference, Washington, D. C.; Dr. W. H. Mills, professor of rural sociology, Clemson College; Dr. Lacy I. Moffett, of China; Dr. John H. Reisner, of Nanking University, China; Dr. Warren H. Wilson, of the Presbyterian Church in the United States, and by Dr. Mark A. Dawber, of the Methodist Episcopal Church. These round tables are being conducted by Dr. Henry W. McLaughlin, director of the country church department, Presbyterian Church, United States.

ChicagoHoodlums Bomb Garage and Food Store

Chicago, Aug. 10 (A.P.).—Terrorists bombed the wrong garage early today, but police were unable to determine whether the other bomb that ushered in the new week had wrecked the right grocery store. The first blast tore a hole in the roof of a garage on the North Side, but Police Capt. Hugh McCarthy expressed belief that another garage, two doors distant, was meant, since the latter had been renting space below the regular scale.

Police suspected that sale of merchandise on Sunday was responsible for the attack on a grocery store on the South Side. Damage was estimated at from $500 to $1,000 in each case.

Rhoads Moves to Bar Indians From Circuses

(Associated Press.)

There will be no more real Indians whooping it up and "biting the dust" in circus presentations of "days of the Wild West" if the Bureau of Indian Affairs can prevent it.

Commissioner Rhoads has written President Hoover that "it is our purpose to discourage the proclivity of the average Indian to participate in circuses, rodeos, Wild West shows and similar enterprises, and in lieu thereof, to direect him toward a more dignified and more permament means of livelihood."

Special emphasis, he said, is being placed upon equiping the Indian boys and girls with an education "to take his or her place in the life of the Nation, whether as an industrial worker, an agriculturist, a teachere, clerk or in some other of the innumerable ways in which American citizens earn their living."

PRESIDENT IS GIVEN INDIAN PLAN OUTLINE

Rhoads Hopes to Hasten Day When Natives Assume Responsibility.

EDUCATION IS STRESSED

(Associated Press.)

Plans of the Indian Bureau to hasten the day when the Indian will be able to assume entire responsibility for himself were laid before President Hoover yesterday in a letter from C. S. Rhoads, Commisioner of Indian affairs.

All plans were made and will be made, he told the President, to fulfill the aim outlined by Secretary Wilbur "to make of the Indian self-sustaining, self-respecting American citizen just as rapidly as this can be brought about" and to regard the Indian as a potential citizen rather than as a ward of the Nation.

"The bureau proposes to give the Indian a practical education, along vocational lines whenever possible; to make better provisions for his medical needs; to provide for the indigent; to assist him in finding and keeping a job; to increase the productivity of his land, and to give him the advantages of modern organization and business methods to attain that end.

The Indian education program and courses of study are being modified to emphasize education of a practical and vocational character.

More emphasis is also being placed on home economics instrction for Indian girls. Congressional appropriation for this year of an additional $1,100,000 for the improvement of conditions in the Indian service schools, such as increased food and clothing allowance above the usual annual allotment, was said to have been a result of the new program.

Appropriation already made of $50,000 for obtaining remunerative employment for Indians was termed the "first step toward the development of an organization whereby the assistance most needed by the Indian youth at a critical time of life might be made available."

An extension system to aid development of stock raising and agricultural pursuits was outlined. An extension director has been appointed together with agents whose duties correspond to county agents in white communities. More will be appointed.

Regarding health activities, the report said, 96 hospitals for the accommodation of Indian patients are now in operation. During the past year more than 37,000 Indians received hospital treatment in Government institutions, whereas a few years ago "it was practically impossible to persuade many Indians to accept hospitalization, even though desperately ill."

St. Louis, Aug. 10 (A.P.).—Fifteen thousand aviation fans visited Lambert-St. Louis Field today to watch Dale Jackson and Forest O'Brine, now nearing a new record for endurance refueling flying. If still aloft at 7:11 a. m. (C. S. T.) tomorrow, Jackson and O'Brine will enter their fourth week in the air in their effort to better the 554-hour record of the Hunter brothers.

At 7:11 p. m. (C. S. T.) today they had been in the air 492 hours and were within 62 hours of the Hunters' record. Jackson radioed today that the oil pressure was a little low and the pilots changed to heavier oil. Except for the low oil pressure, Jackson said the plane was "doing fine."

After sweltering for days, the pilots today complained of the cold weather. Jackson also complained that he was sleepy and suggested the refueling crew send up "a couple of toothpicks so I can prop my eyes open."

Pedestrians in Chicago "Shot Up" by Autoist

Chicago, Aug. 10 (A.P.).—The West Side was terrorized today by an apparently crazed gunman, who shot at pedestrians from a speeding automobile. None was wounded.

A police department automobile came within range of the racing car several times and the officers said they believed their bullets may have struck the wild pistoleer, or his two companions. The pursuing policemen reported they had recognized the terrorist as Joseph Gincek, a former convict. They believe he either became insane or was intoxicated.

Captain of United Fruit Ship Vanishes on Trip

Boston, Aug. 10 (A.P.).—The steamer San Gil, of the United Fruit Co.'s fleet, docked here today without her captain, Leslie E. Large, of London and Boston, who disappeared some time in the early morning of August 1, while the steamer was en route from Havana, Cuba, to Castilla, Honduras.

Officials were unable to explain the disappearance of Large, who had been first officer of the Calamares, flagship of the great white fleet, and who was made acting captain of the San Gil as the result of of vacation transfers.

The pilots, who have been conditioning the plane more than two months, are equipped with a 50-watt radio transmitter with which they expect to keep in communication with the world at 40 meters.

From White Horse the pilots of the big red plane expected to reach Tokyo via Fairbanks and Nome, Alaska, and Petropaviovsk, Siberia. From White Horse to Fairbanks is about 800 miles; Nome is 500 miles farther on, and the distance from Nome to Petropaviovsk is about 1,400 miles.

Wark said he planned only brief stops for refueling and rest. The fliers expected to negotiate the entire distance in five or six days.

Wark, leader of the expedition, is carrying a gold watch as a gift of the citizens of Tacoma to the Emperor of Japan.

Lieut. Harold Bromley, who originally planned a Tacoma-to-Tokyo flight, had planned to carry the gift. Bromley, however, did not take it with him when he changed his plans and went by steamer to Tokyo, where he is preparing to fly to Tacoma.

Start of the flight was delayed more than an hour by radio generator trouble which developed while the plane was being warmed up.

The Pacific Era, is a 5-year-old ship, built in Holland in 1928. The plane was one of four built for Maj. Pedro Zanni, Argentine aviator, for an around-the-world flight but never used. It was left stranded in Halifax for a time, where it was bought by Maj. C. O. Osborne, English flier, who planned to enter it in the Dole San Francisco-to-Honolulu flights.

As a boat in which the major was traveling from England entered Canadian waters he fell overboard and drowned.

Maj. D. R. McLaren, Canadian war flier, then bought the plane for the Dole flight, but on a test flight had so much difficulty getting the ship back on the ground he abandoned it and left it in a Seattle hangar.

Lieut. James Brewster, U. S. N., then bought it and experienced the same difficulty in landing. The plane was purchased a year ago for Miss Ruth Rhoades, who was to attempt a woman's endurance record, flying from the Seattle Airport.

The day before Miss Rhoades was to take the air she was killed in a hunting accident.

Wark and Brown acquired the plane in May of this year.

WORLD-WIDE PEACE MOVE IS LAUNCHED

Jane Addams First American to Sign Plea Put Out by Women's League.

WAR HELD STILL LIKELY

(Associated Press.)

A world-wide demand for "total and universal disarmament" was sought last night by the 28 national sections of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom in soliciting signatures for a petition sent to members of the organization throughout the world.

The petition forwarded to American members of the league was printed in English, French and German, with blank spaces for ten signatures. In the directions to members on the reverse side, it was urged that signers be asked for "a dollar, and, if not that, a dime."

American headquarters of the league here announced that Miss Jane Addams, of Chicago, international president of the league, was the first American to attach her signature to the petition. Among those abroad who were said to have signed the petition were Prof. Albert Einstein, the Countess of Oxford and Asquith, Mrs. Philip Snowden, wife of the British chancellor of the exchequer; John Galswprthy, the writer, and others.

"In spite of the official renunciation of war, grave danger to peace still threatens," the petition said. "Will the peoples allow their governments to prepare their destruction? Let them unite and demand world disarmament." The petition asserted that "whole populations are in danger," and enumerated methods of destruction, including poison gas and incendiary bombs.

In conclusion, the petition requested the governments of the world to take necessary steps to achieve world disarmament.

The Ford Truck serves many businesses

THE FORD 1½-TON PANEL DELIVERY

THROUGHOUT the country, Ford trucks are serving a large number of businesses, under the widest possible variety of conditions. Whether delivering merchandise promptly for smart retail shops, or moving gravel by the cubic yard, the Ford truck gives value far in excess of the price. It is a sturdy truck, always ready and able to hurry a load to its destination . . . and to do it at low cost.

The Ford truck has a good engine. It develops its full 40 horsepower at 2200 r.p.m., which is but a medium engine speed. Wear on moving parts is thus reduced, and many miles added to the life of the truck.

Because the fuel, lubrication, ignition, electrical and cooling systems are simple in design, their operation is highly reliable. Bearings and reciprocating parts are held to close limits of accuracy in size and weight, by means of precision-gages in the hands of expert workmen. For example, the diameter of piston-pins is held within three ten-thousandths of an inch. The result is decreased wear, longer life, and improved performance.

Other features of the truck, which increase its ability to serve you both long and well, are the 4-speed transmission, which provides a wide range of speed and power; the new rear axle, which has a spiral bevel gear with straddle-mounted pinion; the option of two gear-ratios; the larger brakes; the heavier front axle and spring; and the dual rear wheels available at small additional cost.

Standard bodies are the panel, stake, and platform types, all of which are sturdy and good-looking, with ample loading space. Both the open and enclosed cabs are available with the stake and platform bodies. These bodies are mounted on the chassis with 131½-inch wheelbase. For carrying loads of greater bulk, a chassis with 157-inch wheelbase can be supplied. Go to your Ford dealer today, and examine this truck in detail.

INVESTING ABROAD AIDS U. S. TRADE BALANCE

Foreign Financing Builds Up Exports, Fisher States

Power to Buy From America Broadened by Loans to Applicants Abroad; Rate of European Flotation in U. S. Has Doubled During 1930.

By IRVING FISHER,
Professor of Economics, Yale University.

Special to The Washington Post.

New Haven, Conn., Aug. 10.—Europe requires long-term credits in order to increase its purchasing power. Granted these credits, European trade with us should expand greatly. The record for the first half of 1930 shows a doubling of the rate of foreign financing over 1929.

In a recent speech, Owen D. Young pointed to the growing American export surpluses, and the need of investing in foreign securities in order to reduce these surpluses. Our foreign trade has dwindled to the lowest point in six years. This is due, in part, to the fact that new money obtained by foreign governments and corporations in American markets during 1929 failed to reach the high level of the past five years. The aggregate of this new financing for 1929, according to the Dow-Jones compilation, was $1,095,551,880—$862,000,000 less than the total for 1928.

Foreign Financing Increases.

But during 1930, foreign financing in the United States has already exceeded the total for 1929 by almost $100,000,000. The $466,000,000 of foreign securities market here during the second quarter of 1930 alone almost doubled the two largest quarters of 1929 combined.

This is cheering news. Political and financial conditions abroad as well as in this country last year combine to discourage the foreign financing on which international trade largely depends. There were the negotiations to revise the Dawes plan, which induced unusual caution in commitments for foreign flotations until that matter could be settled. The successful offering of the $300,000,000 German "commercialization" loan, of which the United States took $100,000,000 through the Morgan firm, has relieved the situation, and added foreign offerings are being made. Idle funds in our banks are being used to help create what Thomas W. Lamont characterized as a "new epic of economic and political peace in Europe."

Commodity Decline Faster.

American exports have been dwindling as a consequence, partly, of the dwindling foreign loans; partly because of the world-wide business recession with falling price levels, which would have been bolstered up by such loans, and partly because of retaliatory tariffs. The foreign financing of this year, accompanying the new plan of commercial reparations, should stimulate the European market, with renewed demands for American goods.

The speed of decline in foreign price levels has been far greater than in the American level of commodity prices. The vicious process of decline with resultant unemployment, stagnancy in trade, and depletion of consumer purchasing power, started in England with her resumption of the gold standard at the prewar par.

The other countries resuming the gold standard had the same inevitable fate, especially Italy, which made the most drastic increase in the purchasing power of its money. Its attempt to get back to the prewar par failed, but not before it had plunged Italy into a business depression. Now the price levels of Germany, France, Sweden, the Netherlands and most, if not all, other European countries, besides Japan, have slumped, with trade discouragement everywhere.

But with low commodity price levels came unprecedentedly low short-term interest rates. Hence, vast accumulations of idle American money and credits are being attracted into long-term investments, with their superior rates of return. In the New York market offerings of foreign loans were taken during the first six months of this year, in excess of the same period last year, by 73 per cent.

The experience of New York is repeated in other money centers. The London market increased its foreign loans from January to July, 1930, by $33,000,000 above the corresponding period last year. To the sales of foreign bonds in most capitals may be added the great accretions of American investments, both long and short term, that go directly abroad.

Gold Reserves Gain.

Moreover, gold stocks in the American banks have gained by $183,000,000 thus far this year, adding to our enormous reserves on which credits may be expanded far beyond domestic needs. In the Federal Reserve System security loans of reporting member banks have risen, up to July, 1930, by $1,200,000,000 in excess of a year ago. The Federal Reserve Board has been releasing hundreds of millions of new money by its purchases of Government securities in the open market. These factors, combined with the unprecedentedly low rediscount rate, favor expansion of credits for business in the United States.

But they do not hinder the flow of gold abroad, as a further basis for credit and trade expansion the world over. This gold outflow, which is going on at an increasing rate, will serve the double purpose of guarding this country against currency and credit deflation and of checking the deflation of prices that has chilled business enterprise abroad.

The increased rate of foreign financing, therefore, combined with a better distribution of the world's gold supply should have a tonic effect upon world business, which our surplus-ridden markets should be the first to feel.

(Copyright, 1930.)

A rise in foreign financing preceded the business recoveries of 1922-23-1924, and the curve is again rising during the current business recession.

ADVICE ON INVESTMENTS

By CHARLES W. STORM.

In making inquiries address Charles W. Storm, financial department of The Washington Post, and inclose a self-addressed stamped envelope for reply.

Commonwealth & Southern.

S. K. P.—How is Commonwealth & Southern regarded?

Answer—Net income for the 12 months ended June 30 was equivalent, after preferred dividends, to 60 cents a share on the 34,011,010 common stock units. In the full 1929 calendar year earnings equalled 75 cents a share on a smaller number of shares outstanding, while profits for the 1930 calendar year are estimated at approximately 65 cents on the larger capitalization. As dividends are 15 cents quarterly, or 60 cents annually, the company will just about earn the dividend on the common stock units in the 1930 calendar year, providing present estimates prove correct.

Spiegal, May, Stearn.

W. M. T.—What is your opinion of Spiegal, May, Stearn?

Answer—Sales in the first six months show a decline of 29 per cent from the same period last year. Heavy write-downs on inventories resulted in a deficit for the period of $784,146, as compared with profits equivalent to $2.87 per share of common in the 1929 initial half. Competition has increased, but the outlook for the remaining six months is somewhat better as a result of reorganizing retail outlets, cut in payrolls and other economies. Accounts receivable of $12,400,000 represent the bulk of current assets. The 75-cent quarterly dividend due August 1 has been passed, making the stock speculative and not suitable for investment.

Southern Railway Common.

B. J. J.—Please explain the low price for Southern Railway common.

Answer—Traffic has been exceedingly poor. Net earnings the first six months are estimated at about $2,000,000, which is only 22 per cent of those for the first half of last year. Income is equal to only 36 cents a share, as against $5.74 in the same previous period. Earnings on the common for the 12 months ended June 30 were equivalent to $6.27, as contrasted with $13.78 for the previous 12-month period.

Unless traffic and earnings stop declining, or a big cut is made in operating expenses, a further reduction in income for the last six months appears in prospect. Allowing for only seasonal business, earnings for the year are estimated at $2.10 per common share. On such a showing it would appear likely that the common dividend either will be cut or passed next year, following completion of this year's dividend, which is being paid out of funds specifically set aside for that purpose. Southern Railway must be classed as a semi-investment issue although in former years it was considered high-grade.

Pennroad Corp.

W. E. S.—I would like to have some information about Pennroad Corporation as to its qualities as an investment. Is the Pennsylvania Co. the same as Pennroad Corp.? If not, which is the better company?

Answer—Pennroad Corporation was incorporated April 24, 1929, in Delaware. Company organized by Pennsylvania R. R. Co. for following purpose: To make investments and take advantage of opportunities on a much broader basis than is possible under the limited powers of a railroad company; to invest its funds in securities of any company or other agency, including those engaged in transportation of any description, on land, water or air, but without power to operate railroads. Company owns substantially all stock of Canton Co., of Baltimore, and bonds and substantially all stock of Detroit, Toledo & Ironton R. R. Has 10,000,000 authorized no par common shares, with 6,625,000 shares outstanding.

Because of close affiliation with Pennsylvania Railroad, corporation considered to have bright future prospects. Initial dividend of 20 cents a share will be paid September 15 next to stockholders of record August 8, 1930.

Pennsylvania Co. incorporated April 7, 1870, in Pennsylvania as holding company for the Pennsylvania Railroad Co. to control and manage lines controlled and leased by the railroad company, which were located west of Pittsburgh. Effective January 1, 1918, leases of railroad property held by company were reassigned to Pennsylvania R. R. Co. and lines west of Pittsburgh are now operated directly by the railroad company. Has authorized issue of $50 par capital stock of $124,625,000, all owned by Pennsylvania R. R. Co. Has dividend record extending back to 1880, during which period payments of varying rates have been made.

Willys-Overland.

G. L. W.—What do you think of a purchase of Willys-Overland?

Answer—Purchase of the stock is not advised. Willys-Overland is a nondividend payer, and the outlook calls for no immediate improvement in earnings. Net income for the first six months amounted to only $151,704, indicating a sharp falling off in sales, and represented a loss equivalent to 12 cents a share on the common. In the initial half of 1929 earnings equaled $1.21 a share. Competition has been keen, particularly from Ford and Chevrolet, and introduction of the new Whippet models has not helped much. The outlook for the last six months is such as to leave little hope for any earnings on the common stock, which must be considered highly speculative.

NEW YORK MARKET IN GRADUAL SLUMP

1.6 Per Cent Decline Noted in Industrial Shares From Preceding Week.

VALUES AT RECORD LOW

By E. W. DIEFENDORF
(Irving Fisher Service).

In a sluggish market common industrial stocks on the New York Stock Exchange suffered a gradual slump in prices last week, causing the index by Friday to move off by 1.6 per cent from the preceding week's close. The decline followed the recent high on July 28, so that in ten sessions prices have dropped by 2.4 per cent to 132.2 (1926 equals 100) which is but 7 per cent above the June 24 low of 123.5.

Household products, steel and tobacco stocks held steady last week, the indexes moving up by less than 0.20 per cent although the trend of household products has been off for two weeks, while the trends of steels and tobaccos have been up. The remaining groups were off last week in trend as well as in weekly movement, with the largest drop in the radio and theaters and agricultural equipment groups. These indexes dropped by 5.6 per cent. The chemical and drugs groups were off by 2.9 per cent; stores, utilities and office equipment by 2.5 per cent each, and food and sugars by 2.2 per cent.

The decline was less acute in the remaining groups with tobacco, steels, oils, building equipment, chemicals, foods, machinery, motors and rails off by less than 3 per cent from their recent highs.

Values Traded at Record Low.

Dullness in trading last week, with prices slightly off, brought the average daily value of tradings in common industrial stocks to a record low of $57,400,000, a drop of 35 per cent from the average of the preceding week.

Last week's record was 16 per cent under the preceding low for the week ended July 4, 1930. The tobacco and agricultural equipment groups alone recorded gains in their values traded by $300,000 and $200,000, respectively.

The average daily value of tradings in the utilities group dropped by $18,600,000; radio and theater by $5,800,000; coppers by $4,500,000; motors, electrical equipment and chemicals by $4,000,000.

The values traded for all stocks on the exchange dropped by 41 per cent to a new low of $76,600,000; that is, 19 per cent below the previous low of $93,500,000 for the week ended July 4.

Speculative Stocks in Gradual Decline.

The three graded groups were equally responsible for last week's gradual net decline in stock prices, with no one group off by more than 2 per cent.

Speculative stocks took the sharpest reaction following the recent advance to their July 28 high. This grade has shown a declining trend for the last two weeks, closing last week off by 4.3 per cent from the recent high.

The investment and semiinvestment groups have shown more resistance to lower prices, closing last week only 1.8 and 2.7 per cent, respectively, below their recent highs on July 27.

Below are shown index numbers of prices of common industrials on the New York Stock Exchange, arranged in classes derived from Moody's ratings.

Alleged Smuggler Held In "Gold-Brick" Sale

Havana, Aug. 10 (A.P.).—Isaac Weinstein, notorious alleged smuggler, who has been a fugitive from justice for more than thirteen months, was held without bail today following upon his arrest last night on a charge of attempting to sell a "gold brick" to a Havana merchant. Police said the brick was of copper.

Officials charged that as the leader of a foreign band of smugglers, Weinstein reaped a rich harvest more than a year ago by smuggling aliens into the United States.

Trade Currents Set Up By Price Movements

The price level in a small country like Switzerland depends largely upon the price level in other countries; for if the price level in these other countries is higher or lower than in Switzerland, the difference will set up trade currents which will increase or decrease the quantity of money in Switzerland, and therefore raise or lower its level of prices to correspond to the levels outside.

An Export Axiom.

Ordinarily a commodity will not be exported at a price which will not at least be equal to the price in the country of origin, plus the freight. Thus, wheat is shipped from the United States to England, but not from England to the United States. It tends to be cheaper in the U. S.

Double Money—Double Prices.

To double the quantity in circulation will double prices in whatever way the doubling may be brought about—unless there should occur at the same time some change in the speed with which money circulates or in the volume of trade.

Events of the War 13 Years Ago Today

AUG. 11, 1917.

Senator La Follette demanded to know American war aims and Senator King, replying, called Germany an "outlaw nation."

Numerous German attacks on the British at the Ypres front were repulsed.

New York police arrested three men in connection with a plot to evade the draft law.

British airplanes bombed the German airdrome at Chisteles in Belgium, with heavy damage reported.

COMMODITY PRICE LEVEL UP AT LAST

Wholesale List Gains 0.24 Per Cent From Index of Preceding Week.

EUROPE STILL DROPPING

After several months of declining prices, the wholesale commodity price level turned upward last week, with a gain of 0.24 per cent in the Irving Fisher index. For three weeks past the fall had been lessening, but no one could foresee when the actual turn would come. Although the grain prices may be said to have been affected upward by the drought, there were a number of other commodities which showed a normal rising tendency, thus making the turn legitimate.

As a result of this gain in price level, the purchasing power of the dollar declined by 0.25 per cent, being still 20.3 cents more than that of the 1926 dollar.

Darker in Europe.

Conditions in Europe again assumed a darker aspect as commodity prices dropped by less than 1 per cent in London, France and Germany; although, in Italy, the index rose by 0.33 per cent for the week ended August 1, the first rise recorded in many months.

The wholesale commodity price level in England at 76.6 is a record low, having dropped at an average weekly rate of 0.3 per cent for the past seven weeks.

Week ended— (1926 equals 100)	Price index	Index of buying power of $ (1926 equals 100 cents)
August 9	83.1	120.3
August 2	82.9	120.6
July 26	83.3	120.1

June average	86.4	115.7
1929 average	96.3	103.9
1928 average	98.2	101.8
1927 average	94.2	106.2
1926 average	100.0	100.0

1924 average	98.9	101.1

Agriculture Aids Upturn.

The upturn in the commodity price level last week was reflected chiefly in the agricultural products division, whose index rose by 0.71 per cent, compared with a drop of 0.52 per cent for the preceding week. Nonagricultural prices, due to weakness in hides and leathers, fuel and lighting, building materials and miscellaneous products, failed to furnish an encouraging note and dropped by 0.24 per cent, compared with 0.18 per cent for the preceding week.

The purchasing power of farm products rose by 0.87 per cent to 104.4.

Raw materials dropped by 0.13 per cent, following a rise of 0.19 per cent for the preceding week. Semimanufactured and finished goods, though still holding a downward trend, showed slackening in the rate of decline last week.

Sharp drops in the prices of potatoes, apples, coffee, petroleum, leather and building materials were counteracted by a larger percentage of rises, the highest of which were cotton, eggs, grain, beef, hogs, lead, textiles, flour and lard.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, Aug. 10 (A.P.).—The reorganization committee of the Wickwire Spencer Steel Co. has formulated an amended plan as a result of arbitration, which provides that holders of class B notes are entitled to receive 10.686 per cent of the stock of the new company, equivalent to 10.8171 shares of new stock per $1,000 principal amount of class B notes. The plan provides an increase in the stock of the new company to 368,397 shares from 329,030 shares.

Subsidiaries of the National Electric Power Co., operating in 15 States along the Atlantic Coast, reported a total output of 135,466,771 kilowatt hours in July, an increase of 3.7 per cent over July a year ago.

In line with the movement now under way in France to retire loans floated in the United States, the Est Railroad of France, which sold a $20,000,000 7 per cent bond issue in 1925, has elected to redeem on November 1, the outstanding portion of the issue amounting to $18,663,000. The bonds normally would not mature until November 1, 1954.

DRY WEATHER SENDS GRAIN PRICES RISING

But, Despite This, Observers Say Drought Is Likely to Hurt Business.

PIG IRON OUTPUT DROPS

New York, Aug. 10 (A.P.).—Just at the season when a quickening of the wheels of industry is to be expected, old man weather threatens to throw a monkey wrench into the machinery.

The protracted drought over a major portion of the Nation's important agricultural areas has caused marked improvement in grain prices, and may send prices of other farm products kiting, but until the cost of this drastic method of driving out depression can be reckoned, it is difficult to say what the net result may be.

There is a firm conviction in some quarters that the drought may prove in the long run to have been a blessing, that it may have marked the turn from a period of declining commodity prices to a period of better returns and more prosperous days. On the other hand, many merchants fear that sharply reduced crop yields may damage farm income more than higher prices can repair, and that the prospect for autumn trade may have been darkened.

Steel Output Still Declines.

In the meantime, aside from a few automotive, gas pipe manufacturing, radio and other fabricating plants, industry continues to mark time. After abnormally large declines in July, pig iron and steel ingot production has continued to fall off. Iron Age last week placed steel mill operations at 54 per cent of capacity compared to 56 per cent for the four preceding weeks. U. S. Steel is reported to have cut its operations during the past week from 64 to 61 per cent of capacity. Youngstown Sheet and Tube plans to operate at 55 per cent during the coming week, a reduction of 5 per cent.

FUTURE OF DIRIGIBLES.

The flurry of excitement that arose from publication of stories to the effect that the Navy, in the interest of economy, had canceled the contract for the second of the two dirigibles to be built at Akron was speedily silenced by Secretary Adams. No decision has been reached as to whether or not the second ship will be built, he said. The ZRS-4, which is now building, is scheduled for delivery in 1931. Two months are to be given over to trial flights, following which the decision as to whether or not it will be worth while to go ahead with the ZRS-5 will be made. The Navy has an open mind on the question of the value of lighter-than-air aircraft, said the Secretary.

Dirigibles unquestionably are still in the experimental stage. The R-100, which recently was flown from England to Canada, is the last word in Zeppelin construction, but her builder and her commander admit that she falls far short of perfection. To be effective from the military standpoint or practicable commercially the dirigible must be larger and speedier than thus far it has been possible to build her. Because the ZRS-4 and ZRS-5 will be larger and speedier than the R-100 and will more closely approach theoretical perfection in other attributes, it is wise to continue the construction of the former at least.

Assistant Secretary of the Navy Ingalls has faith in the future of the dirigible from the military standpoint. In the course of a speech delivered recently at Cleveland he compared the airship with the cruiser. It takes something over three years to construct a cruiser, he said, whereas a dirigible can be built in less than a year. The cruiser costs approximately $15,000,000, as compared with less than $3,000,000 for the rigid airship. The cruiser, it is true, has an estimated life of twenty years, as compared with ten for the airship, but its annual operating cost is a third larger. Cruisers and dirigibles would perform similar functions in war. Theoretically, it is possible to make out a good case in favor of the airship.

In practice, however, the dirigible might not prove as effective as the cruiser. There is no way to find out except through actual experiment, which is to say that it is imperative that the Navy build dirigibles. Similarly, there is no way to tell whether or not the dirigible will be a commercial success except through actual operation of these craft over trade routes. The ZRS-4 will be the experimental medium for discovering whether or not lighter-than-air aircraft properly belong with the fleet and it probably will be used for experimentation over trade routes. Upon its showing will hinge the decision as to whether or not it is advisable to go ahead with the construction of the ZRS-5.

BEARING ARMS.

Solicitor General Thatcher has decided to appeal to the Supreme Court the decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals for the New York district on the applications of Prof. Douglas Clyde MacIntosh, divinity professor at Yale University, and Miss Marie Averil Bland, World War nurse, for citizenship The Labor Department refused to admit them as citizens, and this ruling was upheld by a Federal district court. The Circuit Court of Appeals reversed the decision, and ruled they were eligible to citizenship.

Both Prof. MacIntosh and Miss Bland refuse to bear arms in defense of the United States and can not therefore take the oath of allegiance without reservations. Miss Bland objects on the ground that fighting is not consistent with the Christian religion. Prof. MacIntosh is not a conscientious objector toward all war but he refuses to bear arms unless he considers the cause of the United States to be a righteous one.

A fundamental issue is involved. The so-called liberal thinkers seek to dodge the real issue by pointing out the fact that Prof. MacIntosh is a divinity professor and that he served as a chaplain in the Canadian army. All this is beside the question. Prof. MacIntosh is attempting to secure the privileges of citizenship without assuming its obligations. He would set himself up as judge as to whether any war in which the United States might be involved is justifiable. If he thought this country to be in the right, he would serve, otherwise he would not. He would make himself a sort of one-man substitute for Congress.

The fallacy of such a position is too obvious for comment. Carried to its ultimate conclusion it would mean that a poll of citizens would have to be taken in event of war; those who thought the cause of the United States righteous would defend it, and the remainder would not. No other conclusion can be reached unless it be admitted that the Government is willing to grant special privileges to some aliens to induce them to become citizens.

This case involves the duty of every citizen to defend his country. It presents the question of whether aliens can obtain the privileges of citizenship without also sharing the responsibilities. It is well that these issues are to be carried to the Supreme Court.

BATTLE OF KING'S MOUNTAIN.

The forthcoming journey of President Hoover to South Carolina will recall one of the epic battles of America's struggle for independence, a battle which some historians have held to be the "turning point of the American Revolution." This was the bloody engagement of October 7, 1780, at King's Mountain, in which a force of untrained and undisciplined patriots thoroughly whipped a force of British militiamen and Tories, and thus smashed Cornwallis' campaign in the South.

The President goes to King's Mountain October 7 to take part in the celebration of the 150th anniversary of that battle. His presence will focus attention on an event that too often has been overlooked or minimized in history textbooks.

In the spring and summer of 1780, things looked black indeed for the American cause. Charleston had fallen, and Cornwallis seemed about to subjugate the entire South. In the summer, Col. Patrick Ferguson, one of Cornwallis' most trusted officers, went into the region of King's Mountain in search of Col. Elijah Clarke, a daring American patriot. For a time, it seemed as though the British might continue on to North Carolina, and it was this threat that led to the memorable battle of October 7.

In September, 1780, there gathered at Sycamore Flats, near what is now Elizabethton, Tenn., a band of warriors, who, from a sartorial standpoint, presented a strange contrast to the British red-coats. Mountaineers from Virginia and the Carolinas, they wore leather-fringed hunting shirts, moccasins and leggings, and coonskin caps. Each man carried a hunting knife and a rifle. Some of the officers were armed with swords, but Col. William Campbell, who headed 200 Virginians, carried an ancient claymore that had come down from his Scottish Highlander ancestors.

On the morning of September 26, the mountaineers listened to a fiery sermon by the Rev. Samuel Doak, a pioneer Presbyterian clergyman. He sounded the Biblical battle cry, "The sword of the Lord and of our Gideons," and the men echoed it lustily. Then they set out over the mountains and through the forests on a grueling forced march to King's Mountain.

The charge up the ridge, which was made by men who had been without sleep or rest for 48 hours, was accompanied with a wild war whoop. Campbell's detachment at first was repulsed by a British bayonet charge, but it soon was reassembled. Thereafter the men fought Indian fashion, dodging from tree to tree, and pouring a deadly fire into the ranks of the enemy. Other American detachments were equally successful.

The Tories tried to surrender, but Col. Ferguson, a gallant officer, furiously cut down the white flags they sought to raise. In the end, Ferguson himself was killed, together with 206 of his men. Of the remainder, 128 were wounded and 600 taken prisoner. The American losses were much lighter—28 killed and 62 wounded.

Gen. Washington in his "general orders" hailed the victory, and Congress acknowledged the country's gratitude to the men who had won it. Thomas Jefferson declared that the battle turned the tide of success, and "terminated the Revolutionary War with the seal of independence."

POSTAL IMPROVEMENTS.

The Postoffice deficit has subjected that department to official scrutiny. Postmaster General Brown has given a good deal of his time to ways and means of making the postal service self-supporting. A plan has been launched for construction of postoffices in the larger cities where the Government is paying exorbitant rents, and efforts are being made to reduce all rentals to a fair value when new contracts are entered into.

The department has just completed a survey of nineteen of the largest postoffices in the country with a view to placing them on a better business basis. The survey will ultimately extend to the 55 largest postoffices, and numerous economies are expected to follow. Offices in which surveys have been completed include those of New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston, Baltimore, Detroit, Pittsburgh, Buffalo, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Indianapolis, St. Louis, Kansas City and a group of Southern cities.

A uniform system of collection and delivery of mail is being installed in the large cities. Heretofore, each city has had a system of its own. Collections of letter mail from street boxes has been expedited, and in some cases this mail is being sent by earlier trains. A uniform system of accounting has been worked out, and an effort is being made to eliminate night work for clerks and carriers. No postal employes are being dropped from the service, but vacancies caused through retirements and resignations are being allowed to go unfilled in the interests of economy, except in offices where the volume of business is sufficient to demand new appointments.

It is apparent that the Postoffice Department is making every effort to apply business methods to the postal service, and to reduce the deficit to a minimum. This action is commendable. When every economy has been made the public will not object to supplying the remainder of the deficit from the Treasury.

PLENTY TO EAT.

It must be amusing indeed for those producers who are struggling to raise their heads above the depressing surplus of foodstuffs to read the prediction of G. P. Bailey, British scientist, that a world food shortage in the next 70 years will make a change in the human mechanism essential. Maybe Prof. Bailey is just trying to be optimistic. Yet he says in apparent seriousness that unless science can substitute a tabloid food for the bulk that is now consumed three times a day, there will be a depressing famine by the year 2,000.

This fantastic prediction is based on two erroneous suppositions: First, that the population of the world will increase much faster than it has in the past, and, second, that the production of food will not keep pace. Prof. Bailey estimates the world population in the year 2,000 at 4,000,000,000. Inhabitants of all countries now total approximately one-half that number. In view of the fact that during all the centuries the earth has been inhabited it has acquired only about 2,000,000,000 people, Prof. Bailey's calculation that within the brief span of 70 years that number will be doubled does not bear critical examination. The tendency of the age is to check the increase in population, and there is every indication that the birth rate will continue to decline.

It should be noted that during the last fifteen years, while the world's population was increased by 10 per cent, production of foodstuffs and raw materials increased 25 per cent. The tendency is not toward food shortage, but toward annoying surpluses. Improved methods of cultivation, application of science to the soil and better means of food conservation have greatly extended the productivity of both the individual farmer and his farm land. The end of these improvements is by no means in sight.

It is impossible to predict what science will contribute to the food supply. But the theory that life will be sustained by synthetic food in tablet form is as improbable as it is obnoxious. The body demands food in bulk form, and the eating of such food is one of the foremost sources of enjoyment. So long as agriculture can be extended (and that appears to be indefinitely) there will not likely be any drastic changes in the form of human food. The world probably would have little difficulty in doubling its supply if that became necessary. But there is not the slightest indication that it will be necessary by the year 2,000. A glimpse at the great open spaces of the two Americas and Australia, to say nothing of what might be accomplished by modern methods in Asia, and even Europe, might add an incongruous chapter to the British scientist's theory.

SOVIET EXPORTS

From the Wall Street Journal.

As one temporary expedient substituted for another, Assistant Secretary Lowman's decision to admit Russian pulpwood may answer the purposes of the moment. It does not dispose of a question which is obviously becoming a serious one for numbers of American industries.

In its simplest terms, that question is whether or not Russia is sending us goods produced by men and women working under any kind of degree of compulsion. Under our laws there happens to be a distinction between the products of "convict" labor, which may be excluded by Treasury order at once, and those of "enforced" labor, which do not become excludible until January 1, 1932. In their practical commercial effect, of course, these two legal classes of merchandise are one.

Mr. Lowman's decision means that the Government imposes the burden of proving the use of enforced labor upon those who seek to exclude the merchandise in question. That is a familiar rule of procedure, borrowed for use in the instant case from the law courts. But it is not established as applicable here by any provision of our tariff law and in the case of Russia there is the gravest danger that its continued observance may wholly defeat the sole purpose of Section 307 of the tariff act. Indeed, so important has Congress considered the question of unfair foreign competition that it has gone further and provided safeguards in Section 303 against the importing of bounty-fed goods. Bounties are of many kinds, some of them cleverly hidden.

Returning to the question of facts and proof, the Treasury will sooner or later have to face the doubtful reliability of even the most official statements from Soviet sources. Neither Moscow, Archangel nor the lumber camps of the interior are open to foreign observers. Thus the Soviet industries and Americans doing business with them are now offered the opportunity to brush aside vitally important provisions of the tariff act by the simple expedient of making statements.

One way to answer the controlling question of fact is for the Treasury Department to make continued imports of Soviet-produced goods conditional upon the results of an investigation to be made in Russia by representatives of its own selection. A government which considers it necessary to examine the books of French manufacturers to obtain trustworthy evidence of production costs can not justify its acceptance of unverified statements concerning Soviet Russia as conclusive. Possibly the absence of diplomatic relations between the two countries would add to the difficulties of such an inquiry, but it only emphasizes the danger of trusting, as Mr. Lowman seems to do, to the representations of a movement which in its own country professes other than commercial aims in the conduct of its foreign trade.

Russian goods should not be excluded merely because we do not accept the political and social ideas of the dominant Russian group. But American and western European travelers in Russia assure us that a widespread assault upon the economic structure of the United States and other so-called capitalistic countries, by invading them with underpriced goods, is avowedly part of the Russian communist program. Whether they can ever hope to accomplish such purposes is not the immediate question. There is reason to believe that they can in certain industries render the existing depression much worse than it is.

To such imminent probabilities Washington can not be indifferent. Its contact with the problem of Russian imports has only begun.

EMPTY PRISONS.

The British government, says the Winnipeg Tribune, is disposing of 18 more prisons for which it has no further use. This makes a total of 26 prisons in England and Wales which have been closed since the war.

Statistics show that Britian has escaped the "crime wave" which has swept so many other countries since the war. While there has been an increase in recent years in minor offences punishable by fines there has been a very heavy drop in major crime, particularly in homicide and other crimes of violence.

This is the more remarkable from the fact that during the past nine years Britian has been suffering from a persistent economic depression which has brought thousands to the verge of starvation. There have been industrial conflicts which culminated in a general strike. But this strike passed almost entirely without violence, and the trade slump and the consequent suffering of the unemployed have had scarcely any effect upon the number of persons it has been found necessary to send to prison. The surprising thing is that the harassed Britain of today imprisons less than two-thirds as many people as did the prosperous Britian of the days immediately preceding the war.

Two contributing factors to this result have been suggested: One, already referred to, is a growing reluctance to imprison persons—especially young persons—for lesser offences. British authorities recognise the fact that prison life tends to breed crime. The other factor is the unemployment "dole." While there is more poverty in Britian today than ever before there is less absolute destitution. The dole at least provides the means of keeping the body and soul together. The average Briton is a patient and law-abiding person. His wants are simple and he does not readily resort to criminal acts in order to gratify them.

FACTS AND FANCIES.

Facts are such stern and stubborn things,
Impervious to whim or plea.
Princes and presidents and kings
Subservient to them must be.

Nor wind, nor fire, nor time, nor tide
Can alter an established fact,
Though by ten million tongues denied
It still remains unchanged, intact.

The ugliest mountains from afar
Are sometimes glorious to see,
But ugly facts still ugly are
And ugly to the end will be.

Man shapes his fancies as he wills.
Finds beauty where it may not be,
A white cloud slips above the hills—
To him it is a ship at sea.

A fact to please him will not change,
Fancy will dance at man's request,
Then can it seem so very strange
That man should love his fancies best?

You Never Worry About the Sheep If You Have Built the Fold Wolf-Proof.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

NERVES make the man.

A Napoleon or a Tunney, able to fall asleep while waiting for a battle, will win the full measure of success justified by his abilities; whereas another man equally trained and equal in natural ability, will enter a contest half whipped by his own anxiety.

Your body is no stronger than the nerves that control and direct it.

Your success in any undertaking, whether a game or a fight, depends on the condition of your nerves.

Knowing this to be true, it is the part of common sense and common prudence to avoid anything that will overtax the nerves and lessen their efficiency.

If nerves were like muscles, exhausted only by physical effort, protecting them would be a simple business; but they are at the mercy of the mind.

They are shattered by worry.

That, you will say, establishes a vicious and hopeless circle, for shattered nerves cause worry as worry causes shattered nerves.

But it isn't as hopeless as it seems, for worry can be prevented.

That is not a Pollyanna platitude, based on the assumption that a sufficient exercise of will power will enable you to think of cheerful things and forget misfortune.

It is a simple statement of fact.

Worry can be prevented by locking the stable before the horse is stolen.

A clear conscience doesn't worry.

In almost every instance, worry is nine parts remorse.

You worry because misfortune has occurred or is threatened as a result of your failure to do your best.

You never worry if you have no reason to reproach yourself.

Efficiency depends on normal nerves; normal nerves depend on freedom from worry; freedom from worry depends on a clear conscience.

If you would succeed tomorrow, leave no reason to reproach yourself today.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

American Tree Association's President Explains How Forests Vitally Affect Civilization and Create Water Supplies.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: How many realize the most important product of the forest is water? Cities are spending millions and going far to find water. Montgomery County is suffering from lack of water now. We turn the faucet for water, but give little thought to where it comes from. In history we read of treks of tribes in search of grass; long journeys in search of new pastures and water. What a commentary on our vaunted civilization if some day those who follow should be forced into a migration for water because those before them had turned this great country into a desert by denuding the land of trees. The American Tree Association has given nearly 4,000,000 Forestry Primers to the schools of the country. These point out the various ways in which forests vitally affect civilization and our very existence.

Water is one of the chief necessities of civilization. If we had no cities, farms or factories, and moved from place to place, camping out as we went, we would drink from springs and streams.

Each town must have its water supply, and as towns grow into cities this supply must be increased to meet the needs of inhabitants and to supply factories. Our population and our industries are dependent on water. The water supply determines the extent of our population and our industries.

Rain in West Virginia affects the water supply of the Nation's Capital; rain in Montana affects the flow of rivers in Louisiana. Reservoirs which supply the irrigation ditches are filled by water from the mountain streams. Forest-clad mountains store the water. There is a direct relation between rainfall and forests, and perhaps the present drought will bring this forcibly to mind. Millions of acres of idle land should be put to work growing trees for many reasons, one of which is water.

CHARLES LATHROP PACK.

Latest Suggestion—Terrific Explosions, Annually Appropriated for by Federal and State Governments, to Induce Rain.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As we have not had rain in 40-odd days, I am hereby offering a weather suggestion as to how to make it rain. Let me say, first, however, that our Federal and State governments would have to appropriate a large amount of money for this purpose. If the appropriation could be made, the money certainly would be more than refunded in the saving of human life, saving of cattle and of crops.

I propose periodically to make it rain through concussion, or air-vibration, caused by the firing of multitudinous cannon, and of other high-powered explosions, with the use of dynamite, powder, nitroglycerin, nitroleum, gasoline, oil, &c. Outside of the use of the cannon, there are other means that I could design, or invent, for this heat control.

Service stations, forts, sky rockets and aeroplanes would play an important part in this work.

This would be opening up a new industry for the oil and powder companies, manufacturers of various equipment, &c.

Besides comfort, there would be a good circulation of money generally, and a Nation-wide return of good times and prosperity.

Let our United States senators, congressmen, governors, State senators, farmers and the public get busy, and let's see if 1931 will be as hot and destructive as 1930.

Since Every One Knows That Oxygen Is a Basic Constituent of Water, It Should Have Been Obvious That Mr. Torrenson Referred to "Free" Oxygen in Reporting Discovery of a Lifeless Ocean Belt.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It seems to me that Mr. Foster, in commenting on Mr. Torrenson's radio remarks concerning the absence of oxygen from certain belts of ocean waters, should have taken it for granted that Mr. Torrenson meant free oxygen, dissolved in water, and not that there was any lack of the basic oxygen, without which water can not exist.

Fish and other aquatic animals, save those that come to the surface for their supply of oxygen, all make use of the free oxygen dissolved in water, and not the basic element in composition with hydrogen.

Inasmuch as Mr. Torrenson mentioned the lack of life in the supposed oxygen free waters, Mr. Foster should have known that the implication referred to free oxygen in solution.

CHARLES K. MORRIS, Jr.

Part-Time Employment.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: "Economies of industry" is a subject well worth the serious attention of thoughtful Americans. We seem to have been burning the candle at both ends in trying to cut down production with unemployment. Laying off the buying and consuming power of industry, instead of retaining it, is bad business. The working man buys by the millions when employed. If industry wishes to produce by the millions, it must keep this buying and consuming power working.

A large rubber company seems to have evolved a system whereby the problems of both capital and labor may be solved. It employs a full quota of men to work seven weeks and then lets them take one week's vacation. This retains in large measure the buying and consuming power of the employes of this company and, at the same time, cuts down production. It is a good forward movement which might well be taken up elsewhere with beneficial results to all.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Envoys Unite In Aiding Plan For Memorial

French Library Will Be Tribute to Famous Bacteriologist.

THAT the art of diplomacy finds expression in many channels besides the graceful gesture of entertainment, the "give and take" of political acumen and the subtle exercise of skill in conducting negotiations is evidenced again in the recent revival of interest by Franco-American diplomats in the Pasteur Memorial Library at the University of Strasbourg on the eastern borderland of France.

Furthering the development of the magnificent memorial to the French scientist are the Ambassador to France, Mr. Walter E. Edge; the former Ambassador of France, M. Jules Jusserand, and Mr. Roy McWilliams, American Consul at Biarritz, who are taking active interest in the library. In addition to this trio of men of world-wide preminence the roster claims among its honorary presidents the names of President Hoover, the Ambassador of France, M. Paul Claudel, and the Ambassador to Great Britain, Mr. Charles G. Dawes.

Everybody knows the flair for literature as expressed in delightful form by former Ambassador Jusserand, whose essays, works on history, criticisms and Shakepeariana as well as journeyings into the field of the novel have placed him high in the realm of French writers. Ambassador Claudel is a poet, playwright and critic, while the Ambassador to England has contributed to the field of literature during the last few years. Their active interest in the French memorial is merely another outlet for literary expression.

The library is not only a fitting memorial to Pasteur, but with the aid and interest being displayed by Americans will serve to strengthen the bond of Franco-American friendship. Pasteur, born about 1820, discovered the serum for the cure of hydrophobia and ranks among the world's greatest bacteriologists.

Among the promoters of the library is Dr. Charles Mayo, who has sent some valuable pamphlets published by the Mayo Clinic at Rochester, Minn. Several hundreds of rare books, beautifully bound, already have been contributed.

On the xecutive board are Hamlin Garland, author; Paul Van Dyke, Hobart Chatfield-Taylor, of Chicago; President Walter Dill Scott, of Northwestern University, at Chicago, and many other Americans.

A dinner took place at the Chilean Embassy last Friday in honor of Dr. Mariano Vasquez and Dr. Silva Pena, delegates of Honduras and Guatemala, who are about to return to their respective countries, after having carried to a satisfactory conclusion the drafting of a treaty which creates an arbitration tribunal to decide on the question of boundaries that has divided those Central American States.

This tribunal will be composed of Chief Justice Hughes, Dr. Belle Codecido, and Dr. Castro Urena. Among the guest of the Chilean Charge d'Affaires were the envoys from Colombia, Costa Rica, Argentina, Brazil, the Minister of Honduras, Dr. Argueta; the former Minister of Guatemala, Dr. Tiblo Machado; Mr. Thurston, of the Department of State; Dr. Gil Borges, of the Pan-American Union, &c.

Short speeches were made by Senor Blanco Viel, Charge d'Affaires of Chile; by Dr. Vasquez and Dr. Silva Pena, and by Dr. Tiblo Machado, who referred to the labors of Drs. Salazar, Vasquez, and Iva Pena as well as to the conciliatory attitude and the courtesy shown in the course of the conference by the Secretary of State, Mr. Henry L. Stimson; the Undersecretary of State, Mr. Francis White; by Mr. Dana G. Munro, of the State Department, and Mr. Lloyd Thurston, of the joint commission on insular reorganization.

Mr. E. G. Nourse To Speak at Cornell.

Mr. E. G. Nourse, of the Institute of Economics in Washington, will be one of the speakers at the first international conference on agricultural economics in the United States at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., from August 18 until August 29. Representatives from 20 foreign countries and the United States will attend. The first conference of the kind was held in England last year.

Mr. Franklin MacVeagh, Secretary of the Treasury in 1924, is at his home near Dublin, N. H., for the season.

Miss Holmes Is Wed To Mr. Cloetingh.

A wedding of interest took place Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Takoma Park Baptist Church when Miss Esther Bell Holmes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Edward Holmes, of 6630 First street, became the bride of Mr. Arthur Charles Cloetingh, of State College, Pa. The pastor, the Rev. William E. La Rue, performed the ceremony in the presence of a large gathering of friends.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and wore a close-fitting white satin gown and a veil of real lace. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and orchids. The maid of honor, Miss Ruth Kapp, of State College, Pa., wore a gown of blue point d'esprit and carried a bouquet of garden flowers. She wore an eggshell hat of lace.

There were two bridesmaids, Miss Janice Blum, who wore a gown of eggshell chiffon and carried a bouquet of garden flowers; and Miss Mary Crowley, who wore a gown of pink chiffon and carried garden flowers. Both had lace hats of eggshell hue.

Two little flower girls, Miss Jane Maddox and Miss Betty Ellis, wore frocks of blue point d'esprit and blue hats to match and carried pink rosebuds.

The bridegroom was attended by his father, Mr. P. L. Cloetingh, of Muscongus, Me. The ushers were Mr. Newell Atkinson and Mr. Philip Crowley.

Immediatly after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Cloetingh left for a honeymoon trip. They will be at home after October 1 at State College, Pa.

Lieut. and Mrs. Cortland V. R. Schuyler are expected in Washington soon from West Point, planning to pass a part of their month's vacation here. They also will visit Mrs. Schuyler's parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. L. T. Coykendall in Maplewood, N. J.

Officials Ask Stimsons to Horse Exhibit

Old Stage Coach Will Be Shown at Lake Placid Summer Event.

The Secretary of State and Mrs. Henry L. Stimson, who are spending a part of the summer at the Ausable Club, Lake Placid, N. Y., where they have a cottage, have been invited as guests to the first horse show of the Lake Placid Riding Club, which will take place August 22-23. Featuring the show will be the appearance in parade of the old stage coach which half a century ago hauled passengers between the Delaware & Hudson Railroad Station at Fort Kent, on Lake Champlain, and Paul Smith's, on the St. Regis chain of lakes. It was drawn by eight horses and tooled by the famous driver, the late Mr. George Meserve.

The old coach, of traditional type, hung upon high leather straps instead of springs, has heavy curved doors and seats swaying above that of the driver. Mrs. Raymond F. Stevens, wife of the executive chairman of the show, will entertain a group of friends on a trip from Stevens House to the show grounds on the opening day, personally tooling the six horses which will haul the antique equipage.

Representative James H. Sinclair, of North Dakota, visited West Point a few days last week and was the guest, while there, of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. William R. Smith.

Two Army Officers Return to Capital.

Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, chief of the United States Veterans' Bureau, and Gen. Hugh S. Cumming, of the United States Public Health Bureau, returned to Washington last night after an inspection tour in central New York, where they visited the estate of Sonnenberg, at Canandaigua, which is the city's proffered site for a veterans' hospital for western New York. The officers went on to Penn Yan and Bath and visited Buffalo yesterday.

Dutch Urn Presented To Baltimore Museum.

Miss Ellen S. Bulfinch, of Baltimore, granddaughter of Charles Bulfinch, architect and designer of the Capitol, has presented to the Museum of Fine Arts in Baltimore a Dutch urn, which is a masterpiece of miniature architecture in itself and bears the inscription "To Charles Bulfinch, Esq., Presented by the Catholics of Boston, first Catholic Bishop of Boston, January 1, 1806."

The urn has two square shaped handles and is topped by a pair of doves, which are symbolic of the peaceful relations between religious sects at that time. Mr. Bulfinch was a friend of John Cheverus, through whose enterprise the first Catholic church was built in Baltimore. It was known as the Church of Holy Cross and was built in 1803 on Federal street.

Capital Folks Making Merry On Vacations

Heated Spell Is Driving Many to Seashore and Mountains.

One of aviation's latest recruits is Mr. John H. Storer, well known in Washington, New York and Boston. Mr. Storer recently flew from Washington to New York to attend several business meetings and from there to Boston, where he passed a week with his family at their home at Cohassett-by-the-Sea. He later went to Schroon Lake in the Adirondacks for ten days' flying, from there to Albany, and thence to Washington.

Mr. Storer, who has now returned North, claims Waltham, Mass., as his home, but has made his winter home for the past seven years at the Wardman Park Hotel, where he maintains an apartment.

He is a member of the board of incorporators of the American Red Cross, a trustee of the Robert Treat Paine Association, director of the New England Watch and Ward Society, a member of the American Federation of Arts and of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, as well as many other societies. Among the clubs to which he belongs are the Metropolitan, Cosmos, Harvard and Chevy Chase Country Club.

Mr. Storer and his daughter, Miss Emilie Storer, will return to the city in the fall.

Miss Janet Richards sailed Saturday on the Lapland on her annual European trip in the interest of her lecture work. After attending the September sessions of the League of Nations at Geneva Miss Richards will spend the month of October in a tour of Spain. She is accompanied to Europe by Miss Cornelia Crans and Miss Nanna H. Peters.

Sharing Good Things

Helping yourself you help Washington, D. C.

The best customer your State has for the food it produces is A & P. The reason is simple: A & P has to buy a large supply of this food than anyone else because of the demand for it from hosts of housewives all over the country who trade in A & P stores.

This helps the producer just as A & P methods help you. Producers, to prosper, must have sure, quick, and good markets. You, to be satisfied, must have the best of what you like at the lowest possible cost

Ask the food industries of the States famous for their food products who are their very big customers. Last year A & P bought over $847,889,000 worth of these products, at a fair price, and will buy still more this year.

Why a low price to you and a fair price to producers? . . . Because all the money you pay A & P for food—less only actual expenses and A & P's small service charge—goes to the producers.

New Mattresses for Old Ones

You can get a new mattress for an old one. The new mattress will be so buoyant that it induces sound, satisfying sleep that relaxes every nerve.

Let us explain this unusual offer:

The costly part of a mattress is the inside . . . no matter whether that inside be felt, hair or kapok. The inside does not wear out. But it does pack. It becomes less comfortable. Germs and dirt are certain to collect. Dust gets in where you cannot clean.

This happens, no matter how scrupulously you take care of the bedding.

But an old mattress can be sterilized in our electric oven—all germs destroyed and the valuable felt, hair or kapok cleaned and combed, then put into charming, brand-new ticking.

This was not possible until we brought to Washington a factory with elaborate new equipment. It is possible now! We are doing it for thousands of Washington people.

The charge for making a buoyant, new mattress of your old one is only $4 to $9. If you will phone us, National 9410, our van will call for your mattresses and they will be turned into new ones that are guaranteed to satisfy you in every way. We need only one day for this work.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

WITH the promise that the specially written radio version will fully equal the stage production, the first scenes in the great drama of "Damon and Pythias" will be presented by Robert Downing, the famous tragedian, tomorrow (WJSV), 9 p. m

The radio dramatization is to be given in five parts, each broadcast requiring 30 minutes, and will continue on consecutive Tuesday nights.

Unless there is a change in temperature, we can not picture the radio audience swarming about their sets to hear the weekly political talkfest, beginning next week with Chairman Shouse, of the Democratic national committee, followed by Senator Fess, of the Republicans.

This offering would go better when things cool off and as it gets a little nearer to election time

AT least two concerns, are soon to put on the market radio sets which will be able to record programs at the same time they are received.

With such a machine, if a listener likes a program, he will be able to make a permanent record of it and later play it on his phonograph as many times as he wants to hear it.

Our curiosity was recently aroused as to what an adult "male soprano" voice might be. Now we are told that Miss Welcome Lewis, radio crooner, is a "female baritone."

The latter is reminiscent of the town where "canaries sang bass."

BECAUSE weather conditions prevented the successful broadcasting of Lindbergh's speech in foreign countries a record of it is being forwarded aboard the S. S. "Roosevelt" to the British Broadcasting Corporation. It will be landed at Plymouth next Saturday and rushed to London for broadcasting over the English network Sunday.

Records of the speech are also being sent to Germany, Sweden, Australia and South America for rebroadcasting. Private copies have been made for Col. Lindbergh to distribute to his friends.

A centralized radio system, capable of intercepting and delivering six different radio programs in the 2,000 rooms of the new Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York, will cost nearly $200,000.

POLITICAL candidates in Hoquiam and Aberdeen, Washington, formerly accustomed to paying for time on the radio during their campaigns, and expecting the newspapers to print their radio addresses free of charge, are no wrequired to pay for this space in newspapers.

"The first candidate to be advised of the policy," R. A. Le Roux, editor of the Hoquiam American, said "declared himself willing to pay. However it was noted that his speech was boiled down to about half."

Dare Interprets the Mode

A charming ensemble of dark gray jersey and pale gray wool, with a white satin blouse made of a big handkerchief. (Courtesy of Schiaparelli, Paris.)

Paris, Aug. 10.

WELL, darlings, the world do move! Just listen to this beauty formula from olden times: "A water to preserve the complexion should be made of minced white pigeons, with sugar candy, camphor, eight or nine kinds of flowers and vegetables, to be kept for eighteen or twenty days and then distilled."

This concoction was to be used with a cleanser "made from raw bread and raw eggs." And the consistent use of these two remedies, it was promised, would preserve the freshness of the skin and prevent wrinkles. Pretty smelley, eh, wot!

Oh, well, we have progressed a bit, haven't we? Most of us know that an intelligent diet, sufficient exercise and the application of simple rules for caring for the skin will make and keep any woman good to look upon!

• • • •

Women are lovely! Women are beautiful! Women are gracious, charming, kindly, peaceful! Oh, goshgol, by Jove-a-mejitis, aren't lovely ladies marvelous? Pardon me if I wax rhapsodic on this subject every now and then.

I assure you it isn't entirely professional either. There just is something wrong with any man or woman who is not prepared to admit that a lovely woman is the most wonderful thing on earth.

• • • •

Don't you want to make the most beautiful nightgown you ever saw? And an adorable negligee to wear with? Sh—h-h-h—, Alana's cost her $150 to have it all made by hand in Paris, and yours can cost you at least five times less if you sit down right this minute and send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the illustrated leaflet that will tell you how to make it. Better send for it, because Christmas is going to sneak up on you, as it always does, and this will make a most gorgeous present!

• • • •

The blouse was made of a white satin handkerchief! The jacket and skirt combined dark gray jersey and pale gray wool! And the three-quarter coat for cooler days was simply the last word. You couldn't blame me for getting all excited about it, now could you? Especially when the excitement led to my sketching it for you, as I did today. Schiaparelli knows how, I'll certainly tell you that.

• • • •

For the young girl, the role is simplicity. Of course, all types of clothing these days must follow that rule, but the older woman can be allowed an occasional deviation in the name of personality, which the young woman couldn't possibly be permitted.

Evening wear for the young girl, for instance, is ideally expressed in pale shades of chiffon, for the winter quite as well as for the past season.

Now, let us remind you of our weekly Dare fashion letter, which appears in The Sunday Washington Post each Sunday.

Washington Memorial To Be Formed by Trees

(Associated Press.)

A Nation-wide appeal for planting trees as a memorial to George Washington was announced last night by the American Tree Association.

The campaign is linked with the forthcoming celebrations of the 200th anniversary of the birth of the First President. Civic and social organizations are cooperating in the movement.

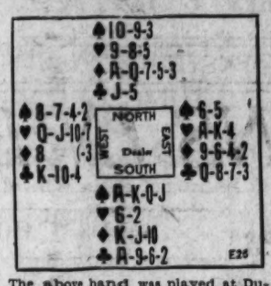
The Goofus Pest No. 476

No sooner do you raise your phone
To talk to some dear friend,
The Goofus Gabber starts to blab
Into your ear—no end.
You can't dismiss her with a smile,
Or with a glance appealing,
Nor can you hurt her with a look—
The brainless have no feeling.
No use to try to carry on
And by persistence fag her;
If you really wish to phone
You'll simply have to gag her!

WORK ON BRIDGE

MISPLAYED HANDS I HAVE MET.



The above hand was played at Duplicate Auction Bridge, two tables participating in the contest. At both tables South was the Declarer, with Spades the trump.

If the hand had been played at Contract, South would have bid two Spades, North three, and South, with a little more than the strength shown by his original two-bid, doubtless would have been in doubt whether to bid four; but he might be induced to do so by the strength embodied in his four top honors, the probability that he could pick up two Diamonds, and the possibility of making his long Club. In Contract, if North had bid three Diamonds over South's two Spades and South had bid five Diamonds, the partnership would not have made game against perfect defense; also at Diamonds the trick and honor scores would have been much smaller than at Spades—supposing game to have been mare in either case.

At the two tables at which the hand was played at Spades, the results were widely different. At Table A, three rounds of Hearts were led, South trumping the third. South then led three rounds of trumps and after that two Diamonds. West ruffed the second Diamond and cashed his two good Hearts; so the adversaries made four Hearts and one trump, and the Declarer scored only two-odd.

Before reading what follows, make up your mind how the hand was played at table B.

THE CORRECT PLAY.

The same three rounds of Hearts were led at Table B, but on the third South did not trump. He discarded the Deuce of Clubs on the theory that the six adverse trumps probably were not divided 3-3. After winning the third Heart the adversaries led a Club. South won, led four rounds of trumps and then ran five Diamond tricks, discarding South's two losing Clubs on the last two Diamonds in the dummy hand. Consequently the adversaries won the first three tricks and the Declarer the last ten.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"LEO."

IF August 11 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7 a. m. to 8:30 a. m., from 4 p. m. to 5 p. m. and 10 p. m. to 11 p. m. The danger periods are from 10 a. m. to 11:15 a. m. and 7 p. m. to 8 p. m.

This date will prove that it pays to advertise business and talents. It is an exceptionally good time for writings and business contracts. A change indicated, the culmination of a long desired wish. Gain through relatives.

The child born on this August 11 will have "independence," level-headedness, and the ability to square up to situations which are quite complicated, early in its youth. It will be methodical, neat and painstaking, and will be a busy, happy little being.

You are inclined to let your "yesterdays" overshadow and overpower your "todays." Most of our yesterdays leave ashes behind. Only a few of us know how to find the sort of fuel for our hearths or our hearts that burns clear away. Yours are shoved into the rubbish dump of your mind—an ugly gray spot—the cinders of which blind you, and the dust of which chokes you. Why not, instead, use them as a pathway to new beauties, new experiences? Tread them down into oblition until there are no regrets! You sacrifice your future on the altars of tradition and custom. You deliberately shut your eyes to new ideas and cling mechanically, obstinately, fiercely to your old established customs. Growing habits and prejudices will clog and hamper you, unless you wisely overcome them.

It is shown that you have diverse capabilities, and you will not probably find your real job, the one which pleases you and satisfies you, until you have scrapped several others. You are patient in your work, and will achieve your ends by solid endurance. Your opinions are fixed and often dogmatic.

You will be fortunate in your friendships, and you will gain through them. There is trouble indicated through an inheritance and legal disputes. You are not a "lucky" traveler—your "acres of diamonds" will be found in your own garden. Trust those of your own sex! A broken heart line.

NATS SCORE 11 RUNS IN EIGHTH TO BEAT TRIBE, 18-6

Westbrook Pegler Says

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—It is pleasant to note by the papers that Mr. Alva (Cozy) Dolan, the boy who forgot to remember, has at last mended his ways and turned to the service of his fellow men as a bootlegger in Chicago. The Federal agents recently raided Mr. Dolan's establishment, which is described as a resort of unique design and quiet and refined atmosphere, as I am sure it must have been, but there is no reason to doubt this matter will be satisfactorily adjusted, as such matters always are in the enlightened centers.

I always knew that Mr. Dolan had some good in him and that, given plenty of years, he would go comparatively straight. And it is my hope that these paragraphs will be of some service in advertising his resort of quiet and refined atmosphere to potential clients, feeling that it is just as ethical to publicize such an establishment as a phoney prize fight or a tennis tournament between professional amateurs.

Precedent Established, Says Pegler.

For all I know to the contrary, Mr. Dolan must live and always, in the old days, it was customary to make mention of the fact in the sporting news when Jim Corbett, Jim Jeffries, Tom Sharkey or Kid McCoy opened a saloon. The papers gave due notice to Mr. Dolan's lapse of memory when he couldn't recollect just what it was that he said to Jimmy O'Connell about the pool the boys of the Giants team had gotten up for presentation to Heinie Sand, of the Phillies. And now that he has said good-by to all that sort of thing and turned to useful public service it would be churlish to ignore him and fail to wish him better luck with the raiders in the future.

It only goes to show that if a man has character he will rise to the heights or scale the ramparts or something of that sort in time. Mr. Dolan, as a ball player in the Western League many years ago, showed occasional glimpses of the sterling character which has now begun to prove itself in the humane work that he has chosen. Present in those days as a second-string baseball reporter in Denver, under the late Otto Floto, was a juvenile journalist named Gene Fowler, who has subsequently degenerated into a novelist and playwright.

Baseball Ruined Good Bar-Tender.

Often have I heard Mr. Fowler describe the brass pole, requisitioned from the city fire department, by which the members of the newspaper staff descended from the city room to the floor below when the desk gave them their respective good nights, and also between times, and many times has Mr. Fowler insisted to me that one day Cozy Dolan would become a useful citizen, basing his prediction, which seemed quite rash at the time, on their acquaintance back in Denver.

"We used to stand at the bar," Mr. Fowler has told me, "gazing at the beautiful bottles arranged along the mirror and fascinated by the bartender's dexterous grace as he drew the beer or smashed the limes for the Tom Collinses, and it often occurred to me that they had ruined a natural-born bartender, when they made an outfielder of Cozy Dolan. Now I do not criticise people except with friendly, constructive intent. For instance, I would not say that Al Capone has been a failure as a racketeer.

D. C. Tennis Team Beats Baltimore

Doubles Play Decides Match As Locals Score, 9 to 6.

Washington Gains Leg on Straus Trophy by Victory.

WASHINGTON'S public court racqueters yesterday defeated the pick of Baltimore's municipal courts, 9 matches to 6, to gain first leg on the Aaron Straus Trophy, put in competition after the Monumental City lads won permanent possession of the Backrack Cup last season. A large gallery was on hand to witness the play on the Potomac Park courts, and plenty of good tennis was shown.

The two teams broke even in the singles matches, winning five each, with Washington clinching victory by taking the decision in four of the five doubles meetings. This was Washington's third victory in the seven years of play.

Bob Considine, of Washington, met Alexander Kellers in the No. 1 singles match, and this proved to be the feature one of the day. Considine figured to win rather handily and had little trouble taking the first set. It was different in the next two, however, the Baltimorean rallying to win the second, 10—8, and then carrying the third and deciding set to sixteen games before succumbing.

Frank Shore Bows To Elliott.

Dooley Mitchell, playing No. 2, had little trouble disposing of Elmer Rudy, of Baltimore, in straight sets, but Frank Shore came a cropper in stacking up against Bob Elliott. The latter took the first set, a deuce one, but was badly beaten in the second. In the deciding one, however, he came back with some brilliant tennis and literally played Shore off his feet, winning at 6—2.

Shore also was on Washington's only losing doubles match. Paired with Latona, he lost a three-set match to Welmon and Clabaugh.

Boxing Faces Week of Few Fights

Suarez-Perlick Bout Tuesday Feature of New York Area.

Argentine Contender for Singer's Title in Second Battle.

In the metropolitan district, principal interest will center around the second American appearance of Justo Suarez, Argentine lightweight. Suarez, who outpointed Joe Glick in his first American start, faces Herman Perlick, one of the famous Kalamazoo twins, in the feature 10 rounder at the Queensboro Statdium Tuesday night. Perlick, a rough-and-ready customer with a good left hand, gave Jack (Kid) Berg a stiff argument here recently and should extend Suarez to the limit.

Dexter Park's regular Monday night show will be headed by a 10-rounder between Eddie ("Cannonball") Martin, former world's bantamweight champion, and Marty Goldman, of New York. At the Newark Velodrome tomorrow night, Arthur Dekuh, big Italian, takes on Bud Gorman, Kenosha, Wis., heavyweight. Baby Joe Gans, Los Angeles Negro welterweight, battles Harry Wallach, of New York, in a 10-rounder at the Golden City Arena Friday night.

Braddock vs. Hunt At Braves Field.

Maxie Rosenbloom, world's light heavyweight champion in the eyes of the New York State Athletic Commission, resumes his Pacific Coast campaign in a six-rounder with Nate Brown, of Philadelphia, at Spokane, Wash., Wednesday night.

K. O. Christner, Akron, Ohio, heavyweight, takes on Max Baer, of Livermore, Calif., in a ten-rounder at Oakland tomorrow night, and on Wednesday at San Francisco, another Easterner, Bobbie Ray, of Pittsburgh, meets Madison Dix, Bellingham, Wash., welterweight, in a ten-round bout.

Hopping Hurt in Fall; Varsity Poloists Win

Port Washington, N. Y., Aug. 10 (A.P.).—Despite fresh injury to their youthful No. 2, Earle A. S. Hopping, who fell under his pony in the seventh period, Capt. Tommy Hitchcock's white-clad varsity poloists spotted the "Reds" an eight-goal handicap and beat them today by the narrow margin of 14 to 13 in one of the most exciting tests yet held for the American International Team.

Hopping, who only returned to the saddle last Wednesday after a two-week lay-off due to a previous fall, narrowly escaped injury. His pony, caroming off an opposing mount, lost its balance in turning, both mount and rider going down in a swirl of dust.

The animal partially pinned Hopping down as it rolled over, but the young player extricated himself quickly and jumped to his feet. Hopping's right side and leg were bruised and his right elbow cut, but after a short rest he returned to the saddle.

Phils Win Twin Bill Over Reds, 18-0, 4-3

Cincinnati, Ohio, Aug. 10 (A.P.).—The Phillies trounced the Reds in both ends of a double-header here today, taking the first game, 18 to 0, and staving off a ninth-inning rally by the Reds in the second to win, 4 to 3. Four Red hurlers were touched for 21 safeties in the opener, and Collina had the edge over Rixey in a pitchers' battle in the nightcap.

ADDS 3 HOMERS TO RECORD

YANKEES WIN 6TH IN ROW BY 14-11

Beat Browns Out in Battle of Homers; 42d for Ruth.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10 (A.P.).—The Yanks outslugged the Browns to take their sixth straight and their third in a row over St. Louis by a score of 14 to 11 today. New York remained in a virtual tie with Washington for second place.

Home runs played a big part in the scoring. Ruth hit his forty-second, while Combs, Goslin and Blue also rapped out circuit clouts. Goslin drove in four runs while Ruth sent in three.

Browns Get Away to Four-Run Lead.

The Browns started off with a four-run lead, but Coffman could not hold it, while Holloday, who relieved Pennock, failed to last. Johnson wasn't much better, but got credit for his second victory in two days.

New Motor May Cost And How III Trophy

St. Louis, Aug. 10 (A.P.).—Edwin C. Loenig, of St. Louis, donor of the challenge cup for the speedboat record between New Orleans and St. Louis, tonight received a telegram from Dr. Louis Leroy, of Meemphis, Tenn., saying it was reported there that C. H. Mickler, pilot of the And How III, had installed a new motor in his craft after leaving Memphis.

"If Mickler installed a new motor, he would lose any claim he might have to the challenge cup," Koenig said, adding, however, that he did not know whether the report Mickler had installed a new motor was true.

Koenig said he planned to leave here early in the morning for a trip down the Mississippi River to meet the And How III. He said he was of the opinion Mickler had no chance to reach here before daybreak.

The And How III left New Orleans at 9:25 a. m. (Central standard time) Friday, Dr. Leroy's record is 87 hours and 31 minutes.

Tigers Down Red Sox; Whitehill's 9th in Row

Boston, Aug. 10 (A.P.).—Earl Whitehill won his ninth consecutive game for the Detroit Tigers today, turning back the Boston Red Sox, 4 to 2.

Until the ninth the Red Sox went runless and made only three hits, but in the last frame they combined two singles and a double with a sacrifice fly for a vain rally which netted two runs. Until the ninth they had gone runless for 17 straight innings against the Tigers, for they were shut out yesterday.

Wilson Hits 3, Totaling 39 Homers as Ruth Gets 42d

(By Associated Press.)

THE race for major home-run honors was intensified yesterday when Hack Wilson hit three balls for the circuit in a double-header between the Cubs and Braves at Chicago and Babe Ruth knocked a homer against the Browns at Yankee Stadium.

Wilson, who was trailing Ruth by five home runs yesterday, knocked his thirty-seventh and thirty-eighth in the first game and his thirty-ninth in the second battle with the Braves, remains three homers behind Ruth, who boosted his total to 42 with his lone round-trip clout yesterday.

The stocky outfielder of the Cubs in decreasing Ruth's margin to three homers, strengthened his hold on second place honors in his battle with Lou Gehrig, of the Yanks, who is now trailing Wilson by six. Gehrig failed to booost his total of 33 yesterday although he rapped out three hits.

Jimmy Foxx, of the Athletics, is the only other major leaguer to hit 30 or more honers. He has 32 to his credit. He was idle yesterday with the Mackmen not scheduled.

Robins Lose 2; Lead Is Cut To Game

Cardinals Win Pair, 8-2, 4-0, From Leaders.

Hallahan Registers Shutout; Cubs Win 2, Climb Nearer.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 10 (A.P.).—Brilliant pitching by Wild Bill Hallahan and steady mound work by Burleigh Grimes gave the Cardinals a double victory over the Brooklyn Robins here today. The double defeat for the Robins while Chicago was winning from Boston reduced Brooklyn's first-place lead over the Cubs to one game. The Cardinals won, 8 to 2 and 4 to 0.

In the night cap Hallahan was the master all the way. He allowed the National League leaders only five hits and fanned twelve. In the third, fourth and fifth innings he struck out seven of the nine men to face him, five of the strike outs coming in a row. Elliott and Moss also pitched creditably for the Robins but they had no chance with Hallahan in such scintillating form.

Luque Blows Up in Seventh.

For six innings the first game was somewhat of a pitching duel between the veterans Grimes and Adolfo Luque, but Adolfo blew up in the seventh and was taken out after the Cardinals had scored three runs. Adams, the first batter to face his successor, Dudley, doubled, sending two more runs across. Thereafter Dudley held the Cardinals hitless.

WILD RALLY DECIDES GAME AFTER INDIANS THREATEN NEAR END

Jones Weakens After Holding Cleveland in Early Innings.

All Runs in 8th Are Unearned; Manush Hits Homer, 1 On.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

WASHINGTON evened the series with the Indians yesterday before an enthusiastic gathering of about 10,000, thus keeping pace with the Yankees, who are giving them a determined battle for the runner-up berth. The victory cut the Mackmen's leading margin to 9½ games, if that means anything, for the world's champs drew a blank on their schedule. The final score was 18 to 6, but this does not give a true picture of the game, which was close until the Nationals packed eleven runs into their eighth inning.

Previous to this big round, "Sad Sam" Jones, who had started off well, had shown unmistakable signs of weakening and the five-run lead which his mates gave him in the first three innings did not loom any too large. A homer by Heinie Manush with a mate on the sacks gave the Nats two more in the sixth and the Tribe had whittled this down to but two runs when the Johnsons came through in the eighth to take all of the competition out of the game.

Hudlin Pounded Out In Fourth.

Willis Hudlin started for the Peckmen, but he was no bargain and quit at his boss' request after Myer and Rice, the first two up, had singled in the fourth. Roxie Lawson, a rookie, picked up the burden and did fairly well until relieved by a pinch-hiter in the eighth, Pete Jablonowski hurling the entire eighth and taking plenty of unishment.

This was one of those innings which are seen only on rare occasions. Fifteen men came to the bat, 11 between the first and second outs. An odd feature of it was that none of the 11 runs scored was earned. The men checked in at the plate so fast that even the scorers became confused at times.

A two-base errror by J. Sewell gave the Nats their first two runs, Jablonowski wild pitched one home and forced another over on his fourth ball on balls of the inning, while other happenings were another wild pitch, a stolen base by Bluege, an error by Hodapp, singles by Myer, Rice, Manush, Cronin, West, and Bluege and a triple by Kuhel with two on. Spencer mercifully put the Indians out of their misery by hitting into a double play.

Two Walks Figure In Early Scoring.

Two walks, Manush's double and Kuhel's single were responsible for the three runs scored in the first while Myer's one-baser and theft and Rice's single netted another in the second. In the next canto, the Nats became five up by turning a walk into a run when followed by singles by West and Spencer.

Then the Nats rested for a while, while the Indians broke the ice, molding a marker in the fifth from L. Sewell's opening double and Montague's single. The sixth was Washington's only other scoring inning aside from its big one. Rice walked opening this frame and Manush then poled his homer over the right-field fence.

Rounds seven and eight netted the Tribe two runs each and Nat fans were not breathing any too freely as a result, not anticipating any such native flurry which came later. With one dead in the "stretch" session, Lawson singled and Jones then packed the aisles by walking both Montague and Porter. Morgan singled both home, but Hodapp then hit into a double play.

Averill Singles, Opening Eighth.

The first three up gave the Indians a marker in the eighth, Averill singling, Jamieson doubling and L. Sewell hitting a sacrifice fly. After J. Sewell popped to Cronin, Pinch Hitter Bib Falk walked and Montague singled, Manush toying with the ball long enough to give the batter

JAMESTOWN LIVES UP TO PROMISE OF HIS TRAINER

Colt's Recent Triumphs Convince

Insco Appears Best of 2-Year-Olds From West.

Siskin Handled His Weight Well at Agua Caliente.

By GEORGE DALEY.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 10 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Once upon a time the Miller Stakes, known as the Kremer up to 1920, but changed as a memorial to the late Andrew Miller, long treasurer and a moving spirit in the development of the meeting here, ranked among the leading 3-year-old fixtures. It still rates highly even though more or less submerged by the greater riches and importance of the Travers.

This fixture will be run Tuesday and both Gallant Fox and Whichone are eligible, but in all probability the purse of $6,000 will be left for the less prominent colts of the age to divide. The son of Chicle—Flying Witch may go to the post for a final tightening up for his clash with the Fox next Saturday, but that remains to be seen.

The Travers on Saturday and the Spinaway for 2-year-old fillies are the high spots, but with a stake a day the sport this week will be as lively as it will be entertaining and in all probability exciting.

The Spinaway, first run in 1861, has a value of $12,000. The distance is six furlongs and the winner will be hailed as just about the best of the 2-year-old fillies in training. Another meeting between H. P. Whitney's Panasette, winner of the Shuyler ville Stakes, and George D. Widener's Sovietta is eagerly anticipated; while Harry F. Sinclair's Ladana, the Goodstone Stable's Blind Lane, and Marshall Field's Double Time are much in the picture among others. My own choice at this time is Panasette and she may have her stable companion Zelide, winner of the fashion stakes at Belmont Park to beat her company. The latter was a better filly than the former earlier in the season.

Jamestown Proves Class.

Jamestown, son of St. James—Mile. Dazie, more than justified the promise of Jack Joyner, his trainer, that he is one of the best colts he ever has developed by his victories in the Flash Stakes and the United States Hotel Stakes. The latter provided a real test. After forcing a burning early pace the colt looked beaten at the turn for home when Novelist challenged, but two or three cuts from the whip changed everything. As Pony MacAtee says, he leveled right down and came away to win in a gallop. It takes a good horse to keep on running as he did with his weight up after carrying his field along so fast in the first part.

Insco must be accepted for the present as the best 2-year-old of the Middle West. In winning the $20,475 of the rich Post and Paddock Stakes on the wind-up of the successful Arlington Park meeting near Chicago he beat the best of that section and so easily that his pull of 10 pounds in the weights over Siskin and Back Log was offset.

The Rancocas Stable's Hyman gained new prominence by running second a half length before E. R. Bradley's B'ar Hunter. The latter was off badly and closed an immense gap to get on the picture. He is one for the book.

Siskin Handled His Weight Well.

Siskin, winner of the Agua Caliente Futurity and Hyde Park Stakes, handled his weight well and was well up, but Back Log, counted by many as the best of his age in the West, disappointed. The winner of the Bashford Manor Stakes and later the Harold Stakes at Latonia, was up with the early pace but could not hold to it.

Jack Joyner heads the list of winning trainers for the first eight days of the Saratoga Springs meeting, including Friday, with three winners and $21,230. Jamestown is responsible because of his winning the Flash and the United States Hotel Stakes. Tom Healey is second with two winners, including Whichone and $15,125, while Tom (Greentree) Murphy stands third with four winners and $12,450. Jack Joyner also has put George D. Widener at the top among the leading owners with $21,230. H. P. Whitney stands second and the Greentree Stable third.

45,000 WATCH CUBS WIN 2, 6-0 and 11-1

Wilson's Bat Bright Feature in Braves' Double Defeat.

CHICAGO, Aug. 10 (A.P.).—The Cubs moved up to within one game of the National League leading Brooklyn Robins today by winning a double-header from the Boston Braves, 6 to 0 and 11 to 1, while St. Louis was upsetting Brooklyn twice.

A pair of highly polished pitching performances by Charlie Root and Pat Malone and Hack Wilson's home-run bat accounted for the Chicago triumphs.

Root turned the Braves back with three hits to win a 6 to 0 decision in the opener, in which Wilson blasted out his thirty-seventh and thirty-eighth home runs of the season. Malone came up with a five-hit bid in the second game to win, 11 to 1, as Wilson got his thirty-ninth homer.

Wilson drove in four runs in each game, and his home run total as the day ended was only three shy of the National League record set last season by Chuck Klein of the Phillies.

More than 45,000 spectators saw the double victory of the Cubs, and more would have seen it had there been room in Wrigley Field.

COLUMBIA HEIGHTS AND ST. JOE BOW IN LEAGUE

Woodmen and Eagles in Victories

Freschi, Brown and Sweeney Stars of Upset Battles.

Woods, Medicos, Sets Burroughs Down With 1 Hit.

STANDING OF THE TEAMS.

Medicos	8	4	.667

THE Columbia Heights and St. Joseph's Clubs which have been sailing along smoothly in the District section of the Capital City League ran into a pair of snags yesterday. The Woodmen of the World Nine sprang one of the biggest upsets of the league season by taking Columbia Heights, league leaders, into camp, 6-2, before some 600 fans on the Monument Grounds, while the Anacostia Eagles jolted St. Joseph to the tune of 16-5 on the Congress Heights diamond.

While those scenes were being enacted, the Army Medicos were trouncing the Burroughs A. C. Team, 17-0, behind the one-hit pitching of Augustus Woods.

The results of the day's games had an important effect on the standing of the clubs. It was the second defeat in twelve starts for the Columbia Heights Nine and tightens the race. The Anacostia Eagles replaced St. Joe in second position and will have a chance to tie Columbia Heights when these clubs meet later. St. Joe is not entirely eliminated and the defeats of the leaders gives the Army Medicos another chance.

Woodmen Victory Foreseen.

While the defeat of Columbia Heights by the Woodmen will go down as an upset, many fans who have followed both teams were expecting as much.

Joe Freschi was the outstanding hero of the contest which saw the last place team turn back the leaders. Freschi scattered seven hits and fanned twelve batters. He held the Columbia Heights sluggers to two hits until the eighth.

In addition, Freschi hit a homer with two teammates on the bases to clinch the victory in the fourth inning, after Mike Demma's double had accounted for two tallies.

The result of the game was no upset to Manager Tony Burruto, of the Woodmen. He had warned the Heights nine that his combination was out for victory. The Woodmen, despite their lowly standing, have played high class ball in virtually every game of the season. They have dropped four decisions by a single run.

In taking Columbia Heights into camp, the Woodmen routed Dusty Rhodes, the Heights' mound ace in the fourth, but Ellis Goodman checked the attack for the remainder of the distance. Goodman's triple scored both the Heights' runs.

The pitching of Hal Brown and the hitting of Tom Sweeney were the outstanding features of the Anacostia Eagles' victory over the St. Joseph team.

Sweeney Slams Out Six Hits.

Sweeney, who aided St. Joe in its drive to the Capital City League title vengeance. His collection for the last year, hit for the Eagles with a afternoon included two home runs, a double and three singles in six trips to the plate. He scored five runs and his individual batting would have been enough to beat the visitors.

Brown pitched a steady game for the Eagles. He was in serious trouble in only one inning, the sixth, when he yielded four runs. Brown pulled himself together at this stage and blanked his opponents the rest of the distance.

Clark and Suegrue got tthree hits each for the Eagles, while Cinnotti and Shapiro got two bingles each for St. Joseph.

McMullen Makes Lone Hit.

A single by McMullen in the seventh inning spoiled a budding no-hit game for Woods, of the Medicos, in the Burroughs game. Woods fanned ten batters.

Norman batted out four hits in six times at bat, while Duke and Woods came through with home runs.

WONDER BOY NINE BOWS BY 4 TO 2

Georgetown's Insects Win; Lomax and Harris Stars.

THE Georgetown Insects drew first blood in the play-off for the Capital City League Insects championship, when they took the first game of the three-game series by a margin, 4 to 2, on the Monument Grounds yesterday.

As predicted, the game was a pitchers' battle from start to finish between Lomax, of Georgetown, and Cuozzo, of the Wonder Boys, with Manager Buck Trundle's ace having a slight edge.

Little Mickey Harris provided the blow which gave Georgetown the victory when he slammed out a home run with one teammate on base in the sixth inning to tie the score. This was the only frame in which Georgetown scored. Givonnetti's double and singles by Dunigan and Wiles produced the other two tallies.

Lomax Allows Run In First.

Lomax allowed a run in the first inning. Crenshaw's triple and McConnell's sacrifice fly did the trick. The Wonder Boys registered their other tally in the sixth. McConnell singled and Cuozzo singled, McConnell scoring on an error.

This was the third meeting of the season for these clubs. The other two clashes were outside of league competition. The first clash went thirteen frames without a score and the second resulted in a 4-to-3 decision in eleven innings for the Wonder boys.

Dunigan proved the most consistent hitter yesterday, being credited with three safeties in four trips to the plate.

The victory was costly to Georgetown. Jimmy Corcoran, who has been playing great ball at third base, was spiked in making a putout in the eighth inning. Corcoran suffered a gash in his thigh, which required four stitches.

The next game will be played next Sunday at 11 o'clock.

Saks Clothiers Beat Olmsted Grill, 3 to 0

The Saks Clothiers won one of the best-played sandlot games of the season yesterday when they defeated the Olmsted Grill Nine, section winners of the Capital City League, by a 3-to-0 score on the East Ellipse diamond.

The game was a pitchers' battle between Lewis and Young, with former having an edge and deserving of the victory. Triples by Guyer and Luckett figured in the Saks scoring.

Yingling, at first for Saks, played his eighteenth straight game without an error, and has 238 chances to his credit.

Saturday, the Clothiers defeated the Army War College, 8 to 7. Sebastian got five hits out of six times at bat in the two contests.

THE Dixie Pig and Mount Rainier Nines turned in yesterday's victories in the Prince Georges County League. The Pigs kept on the heels of the leading Mount Rainier Club by defeating the Hyattsville team by a margin of 14-11 while Mount Rainier came through with a 11-1 triumph over the Brentwood Hawks.

Mount Rainier can now clinch the section title by defeating either the Pigs or Hyattsville in their next battles. Hyattsville, suffering its fourth defeat, is virtually eliminated.

The Dixie Pigs had to stage some monumental rallies yesterday to defeat Hyattsville but they were equal to the task. Hyattsville stepped out to a 10-to-3 yead in four innings but the Pigs blew the top off the game in the fifth and sixth.

Clapper hit a homer for the Dixies in the second and in the fifth, Stahl and Colliere slammed the ball for the circuit. The inning produced six runs and the next frame brought five tallies and the lead.

Hargett hit a homer for Hyattsville, and two singles. Brandt and Radtke also got three hits.

After three scoreless frames, Mount Rainier pounded out its victory over the Brentwood Hawks. Quigley and Waple divided the Mount Rainier pitching while Mosedale led the attack with two singles, a double and a triple.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

INFANTILE PARALYSIS.

THIS is the season for infantile paralysis. When the disease appears early in the summer it is apt to increase slowly through July and August and flare up violently in September. By October it can be expected to be on the decline and the rule is that Thanksgiving sees the passing of the menace for the year. A section that has had considerable infantile paralysis one year is generally nearly free from it the next year. A low period lasting several years can be expected.

There are certain forms of contagion that seed a country one year and develop epidemics the next. It seems to be necessary to plant plenty of carriers around as a foundation for an epidemic. In the case of infantile paralysis an outbreak in one summer season seems to use up all the susceptible material, changing them to immunes. The next year there is not enough material for the contagion to work on and a threatened epidemic flickers out.

The logic being right it follows that most of the people who become infected with poliomyelitis do not become paralyzed or suffer wasted muscles. The fact is that most of them are supposed to have nothing more than a passing fever of unknown origin, or a little stomach upset, or a little loose bowels. There may be no symptom which suggests infantile paralysis. Perhaps the mother notices that her child does not want to be held in her lap, that cuddling him up causes him to have pain, but if she thinks of that at all she thinks of rheumatism as a cause. Probably she thinks her child has some backache from his fever, or is peevish. About the best home sign of very mild infantile paralysis is this backache and sore back on being cuddled and the desire to be "let alone."

In the infantile paralysis season children should not congregate. Especially should well children avoid sick ones regardless of the apparent nature of the illness. It is just as well to protect children against flies and other insects.

EGGS, FOOD FOR CHILDREN.

Mrs. C. L. L. writes: Will you settle a controversy in regard to children's food?

1. Are hard-boiled eggs and hot chocolate bad for children?
2. Has a hot home-cooked cereal more value than the kind already cooked when bought?
3. Is calf liver (and kidneys, also) of more value than that of beef, or are they merely more palatable?

REPLY.

1. There is no better food than eggs for a rapidly growing child. However, eggs do not agree with all children. Hard boiling is a good way to cook an egg. Hot chocolate is not quite as wholesome as hot milk. If it is given to children it is better to use as little of the chocolate and as much of the sugar and milk as the children will agree to.
2. They are about on a par.
3. They are more valuable if there is anemia. If there is no anemia they are about on a par with lean meat. In certain conditions, for example, they rank below lean meat.

HAVE DIABETES EXAMINATION.

C. O. writes: Can you tell me the cause of carbuncles returning and also tell me how to get rid of same?

REPLY.

Have you ever been examined for diabetes? Does your work expose your skin to grease, dirt and infections unduly? Do you poultice your carbuncles or apply fat meat to them? These questions may suggest methods of prevention. Phage, locally applied, sometimes gives excellent results.

HIDE IN THE DARK

By FRANCES NOYES HART

Author of "The Bellamy Trial"

Time: All-Hallows Eve.
Place: Lady Court, an old manor house south of Washington.
Cast of Characters:

Doug King, hilarious and jovial, the life of every party and the founder of the March Hares.

Neil Sheridan, sleek, dark, highly successful in his career as a lawyer and bachelor of Trudi, wise, witty and chic, with all the ease of manner of a grand duchess and the lack of manners of a Bishwife.

Chatty Read, small, fair, blindly adoring wife of Tom Ross, the least successful man in the room, shabby and sensitive amour his wealthy friends.

Hanna Dart, a gentle lady, immaculately beautiful, whose reserve masks a deep affection for her husband.

Gavin Dart, a rather tired and immensely successful business man of 50, with shrewd, dark eyes and steel gray hair.

Ray Hardy, the youngest member of the party, not long married and overwhelmingly in love with

Joel Hardy, her charming and irresponsible husband, who has not known five minutes older in the last ten years.

Jill Leighton, graceful and gracious, stepsister of that legendary Sunny, the beloved girl whose memory of seven years are still lay like a shadow over the gay group.

Larry Redmond, an agreeable young banker who can not understand why Jill hates him.

Kit Baird, wanderer and adventurer in strange lands, who in his casual way does every romantic thing marvelously well.

THE STORY THUS FAR:

Thirteen gay revelers, calling themselves the March Hares, have gathered on Hallowe'en at Lady Court, an old manor house. As the party gets under way, some one starts a gramophone. The record is "Underneath the Stars." Sunny's tune, Sunny herself, whose every one loved, having been drowned in Washington.

Kit entertains with a few songs. Lindy then tells him why she arranged the party. She confesses her love for him, proposes; while in another part of the house Larry proclaims his love to Jill. Outside a storm is raging, but the March Hares continue to make merry. Kit and Doug, however, quarrel when Lindy objects (for the moment) to dancing with Kit. The situation is saved when Lindy relates a murder story concerning early relatives who occupied Lady Court.

Chatty and Trudi review events since the last party. Lindy corners Kit again and teases him about being jealous of Doug King. Later as she chants "Mirror, mirror, dark and bright * * * Kit's face appears in the glass. The mirror is broken. Doug is furious. Kit discovers that the party is marooned—a bridge over a creek has been washed out.

Halloween games continue until some one suggests cards and dice until midnight. Kit makes a big winning at poker. Doug is the victim. Comes midnight and time for "Hide in the Dark." Lights go out; everybody scampers to different parts of the house. Doug (who is to hide) is found by Jill on the sofa, dead—murdered—and the house is in confusion.

Lights are on and the party reassembles in the living room.

NOW CONTINUE THE STORY.

THE INQUISITOR.

LARRY rose stiffly to his feet, staring about him as though he were seeing the room for the first time.

"Just keep your eyes closed while I get the smock, darling. Where did you say, Lindy? Yes, I see. That's my brave girl."

Jill asked, "Is there blood on me, Larry?"

"Only a little, darling; it's all covered now—you can open your eyes."

She said in that small formal voice more terrifying than any frenzy: "Thank you; do I have to?"

"No, dear, no——"

"Then I think I won't, if you don't mind."

She sketched again the dreadful mettle parody of a smile with lips too stiff to curve and was silent. Larry Redmond stood staring down at her, something quivering behind the rigidity of his face. After a moment he turned despairingly to the group by the door.

"Look here, we can't keep this up, and that's flat. We're none of us going to be able to get at this thing with any sanity or decency while—while Doug's still here in the room. I don't consider myself particularly high strung, but it simply shoots the earth out from under me every time I look over in that direction, and it's not pleasant to imagine what it must be for the girls. Isn't there any way we can get him out before Trudi brings Ray down?"

Sherry cried, "Oh, for the Lord's sake, let's not stand here any longer talking about it—let's get at it. Here, Tom, you lend a hand."

Tom asked in a carefully controlled voice: "How about the police? They'll have it in for any of us that mess things up around here, won't they?"

"Where do the police come in on this?" yelled Sherry, his voice suddenly strained to frenzy. "We aren't in Scotland Yard or the morgue, as far as I know. We're in Lady Court and that thing on the sofa there isn't just a corpse in a story—it's Doug—it's Doug King, and we're us, not a lot of rotten puppies in a melodrama. If we've got to spend the rest of the night in this infernal room, I'm going to get Doug out of here into that chapel, and if any of the rest of you think I'm going to be sent up to the electric chair for it, you can keep your mouths shut and steer clear of me from now on! Come on, let's get started."

"Sherry, wait." Lindy's fingers were on his wrist, but it was her voice, not the light fingers, that held him. "This is Lady Court, as you say, and you are one of my guests here, Sherry, you do see, don't you, that I simply can't permit you to jeopardize the safety of my other guests by doing anything that—that we shouldn't do—no matter how dreadfully, dreadfully we may want to do it. Gavin, you said that you knew a good deal about police work, didn't you?"

"Quite a bit, yes."

"Then won't you help us now, please? Would it be possible to do what Sherry suggests?"

Gavin, in the far corner where he stood guard over the motionless Hanna, stood motionless, too, for a moment, with contracted brows. When he spoke it with a trifle more than his customary deliberation.

"Naturally, the police are going to object violently to the obliteration of any possible clews. But as it appears to be highly problematical as to how soon we'll be able to get in touch with them and as it certainly seems advisable to keep us confined to this room until certain facts are definitely established, I think that we'd be justified in taking matters more or less into our own hands."

"Until what facts are established?" inquired Kit.

"Well, there's the weapon, of course—and then one of the first things that the police would try to ascertain is whether it might not possibly be a suicide."

"At least we'll be able to set their minds at rest on that score," said Tom Ross, something that was almost a smile passing over his haggard face.

"Something makes you entirely clear as to that?"

"Clear? Naturally I'm clear. Aside from half a dozen obvious reasons, there's the more than obvious one that Doug King had everything in God's world to make life worth living for the next hundred years!"

Neill Sheridan looked up swiftly.

"That shows all you know! Doug was——"

"Larry!"

Joel's voice from the stairs sounded tired.

"Yes?"

"Just wanted to let you know that Ray went to her room right after the gong struck, took some aspirin and turned in. She was asleep, but she'll be down as soon as she can get some things on."

"Good kid," commented Larry briefly.

"She's a long sight gamer than I am," said Joel. His receding footsteps lagged even more than his voice. They had hardly died away as Gavin Dart asked in his pleasant, unstressed voice:

"You were going to tell us something about Doug King, Sheridan?"

Something in that voice, for all its lack of emphasis, caused the loquacious Sherry to cast a startled glance in its direction. After a moment he said slowly. "Well, you can't exactly say that he had everything. Just tonight while we were upstairs dressing he was telling me how sick and tired he was of all this rolling-stone stuff, and how he wanted to settle down somewhere and have a nice little home——"

The wintry smile once more flickered behind Tom Ross' eyes.

"Still, Sherry, you don't think that he cut his throat because he didn't have it, do you? I hardly think that any of us are going to be able to persuade the police of that! They're likely to look for a more substantial motive—and something tells me that they're not going to look for it from Doug."

"Of course, there's another way of establishing that it's not a question of suicide," commented Gavin thoughtfully. "If there's no knife within reach of his hand——"

"It's murder," said Kit. "There is no knife within reach of his hand."

"You sound fairly definite."

"I'm more than fairly definite. I've had an absolutely clear view from here of the sofa from the moment that the lights went on. There's no knife there."

"Did you notice a weapon of any kind when you were making your examination, Ross?"

"No." The little line of sweat edged the fine, sensitive lips once more. "Kit's right; there's no knife."

"Then if that's the case, the matter of posture isn't so important and I think that we might risk moving him. Hanna, I'll not be more than a moment."

Hanna, turning on him those immense, strange eyes that had been feeding tirelessly on space, said "I'll come, too."

"My dear child, there's nothing that you can do. If you'll just sit here quietly."

She repeated, rising as though he had not spoken: "I'll come, too."

Her hand was on his arm, but she walked beside him erect and superb as any Grecian goddess.

Lindy's suggestion.

Lindy asked, "Gavin, mightn't it be a good idea to move the whole sofa without touching—anything? I'm quite sure that it will go through the chapel door. Two of you could take each end and I'll hold the door open."

"Lindy, that sounds like a real inspiration. I'm inclined to believe you have the leveleest head of any of us!"

She murmured with a small, forlorn smile and gesture of denial: "Oh, I'm like the skyrocket in an emergency—I rise to the occasion in quite a burst of glory, but I come down like the skyrocket, too. Please don't count on me. * * * Shall I hold it open now?"

"I hardly think that it's going to be necessary. If you'll just stay near Hanna for a minute, I'll be more deeply in your debt than ever!"

Hanna said: "Gavin, it isn't necessary for any one to stay with me. I'm sorry that I was so stupid, but that's all over now."

For all the magnificent tranquility of her tone, she did not look quite all right. Under the level brows her eyes stared out strangely on a strange world, the pupils so dilated that the flawless aquamarine was almost black.

Kit Baird, who had been standing looking down at the twisted handful of violets in his hand, straightened abruptly, tossed them carelessly into the basket at his feet and lifted his eyes to the lovely lady by the table.

"What happened to the famous earrings, Hanna?"

She clapped startled hands to her ears and then dropped them, with a tremulous smile.

"Oh, Kit, for a moment I forgot and thought I'd lost them. The screw's loose on one of them—it came off in my hand during supper and I was afraid of its falling off somewhere in the dark while we were playing, so I dropped them both on my dressing table near the door as we went by on our way to the third floor."

"Gavin, you aren't worried about me any more, are you? You must surely see that I'm quite, quite all right."

He stood eyeing her gravely solicitous, and then turned steadily to the ugly task before him.

"Very well. You and I at this end, Baird, Sheridan, I think you're better out of this for a bit. Ross at the other—And how about you, Redmond? Can you swing it?"

"I've evidently managed to convey a flattering opinion of my qualifications in an emergency," commented Larry Redmond with a grim twitch at the corner of his lips. "Not that I'm in any position to blame you! I'm not particularly given to hysterics, however. Careful, Tom—this thing's heavy."

"I think that we can manage it perfectly if we can just negotiate this corner by the door. The point is to hold it ... vel as possible, of course."

"There's a step down here into the chapel," said Kit Baird. "Tilt your end up a bit, boys, as we step down—about six inches, at a guess. That's the idea. Now, steady does it. * * *"

Chatty ventured a terrified glance in the direction of the fading voices and then unclinched her hands with a long, sobbing sigh of relief. Eight little scarlet crescents stood out sharply on the limp palms, showing the frantic urgency of that pressure. Hanna asked, without turning her head: "Have they—gone?"

"Yes, they've gone. * * * Oh, Lindy, I don't think that I'll ever be able to stop crying again—not ever."

Lindy, laying a consoling cheek against the poor wet hand, whispered: "Chatty, don't cry, don't cry. It will help us all a lot if you don't cry. We've got to all be brave, or none of us will be able to bear it."

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

VIRGINIA HIGHWAYS GOOD THOUGH DUSTY

500 Miles Have Been Oiled to Date This Year, Department Says.

DETOURS ARE OUTLINED

Richmond, Va., Aug. 10 (A.P.).—Five hundred miles of soil and gravel roads have been oiled to date this year, all of which are in good condition, the State Highway Department announces in its weekly review of road conditions.

Highways over the State are good, although soil and gravel roads are very dry and dusty, the report says. Continuing, the report reviews conditions in detail as follows:

Route 19, the river road between Richmond and Columbia, has been oiled from Richmond to Goochland Courthouse except for a section of about a half mile at Sabot and a quarter mile at State Farm, where work is now being done on new location. From Goochland about three miles westward the road is now being oiled and scheduled to be completed on Tuesday of next week.

Richmond-Danville Road Unoiled.

On the Richmond-Danville road through Amelia, Burkeville, Keysville, and Halifax, no oiling is under way, and the construction between Wylliesburg and Staunton River is in very good condition except that it is dusty in several places.

From Richmond to Kilmarnock and Irvington over route 13 to Warsaw and route 37 from that point is all hard surfaced and in good condition. Route 13 from Richmond west to Farmville is also in good condition, with no oiling in progress.

On route 23 between Christiansburg and the West Virginia line toward Princeton, surface treatment was begun the last part of the week between Blacksburg and Newport, and will probably be completed about the first of next week. It will be kept open to traffic and work will cause no trouble. This project completes the paving of route 23 from Christiansburg to Narrows, and between Narrows and the West Virginia line work is going on to the north side of the New River, while traffic is using the regular old road on the south side from Narrows to Glenlyn, which is rough but passable.

Detour West of Waynesboro.

On route 39 between Richmond and Staunton a 4-mile detour is still in use just west of Waynesboro. Traffic from Waynesboro to Lexington can follow route 809 from Waynesboro to Greenville and avoid this detour. About 6 miles of route 809 is not hard surfaced, but is in very good condition. On route 39 west of Staunton, between West Augusta and Monterey, oiling has been started and will probably be in progress for the next two or three weeks. This work will cause no trouble and the road will be kept open to traffic.

On U. S. Route 1, which is paved all the way across the State, several curves are being eliminated just south of Alexandria, but the work is on new location and does not cause any trouble. Between Alexandria and Fredericksburg three bridges are being widened and traffic will be taken over the regular bridge on one and over by-pass bridges around the other two.

Along the Shenandoah Valley pike, U. S. Route 11, between Winchester and Staunton there are three places where the highway is being widened and these sections are rough for only a short distance. No detours are necessary around these construction projects, as traffic is taken care of over the regular macadam road without trouble. Between Staunton and Roanoke the only work going on is just outside Roanoke, where there is a detour of about 6 miles over a good macadam road no longer than the regular highway.

Detour Near Pulaski.

Between Roanoke and Bristol there is a detour of about 8 miles between Dublin and Pulaski. Part of this detour is narrow macadam in very good condition and the remainder is fair dirt road. Two short sections of reconstruction near Marion and near Chilhowie are rough where the new and old roads cross, and between Wytheville and Marion oiling will be in progress until about August 15.

This road is kept open to traffic and is in good condition, and by driving slowly over the short section where the work is going on there will be no trouble.

The oiling on U. S. Route 15, between Culpeper and Orange has been completed, which ends the hard surfacing of this highway all the way across the State, a distance of 245 miles.

Route 80 Is Good.

U. S. Route 80, from Newport News to Richmond, Farmville, Lynchburg, Natural Bridge, Lexington and Clifton Forge to the West Virginia line near White Sulphur Springs, about 340 miles, is hard surfaced and in good condition all the way except about 4 miles near Natural Bridge, which is dusty and a little rough in places. Between Newport News and Lee Hall, traffic is advised to follow the white center line on the road to avoid getting off on the old section of concrete.

On U. S. Route 170, between Danville and Lynchburg, the 20-mile detour north of Danville has been discontinued and traffic is being sent over a good soil detour 3½ miles to Route 12 and then into Danville. On Route 18, between Lynchburg and Charlottesville there is a detour of 3 miles just south of Amherst and section of the old road, where traffic is carried over the construction north of Lynchburg.

U. S. Route 211, the Lee Highway, from Washington, D. C., to New Market, by Warrrenton and Sperryville, is under construction for a distance of about 25 miles, and while most of the work is on new location the old road in quite rought in places and a 10½-mile detour is in use around part of the work. The detour will be abandoned about the middle of August and traffic carried over the new road and sections of the work. Through traffic from Washington, D. C., to points along the Valley Pike will find Route 50 by Winchester a better route and only about 15 miles longer.

Drought Causes Firm To Lay Off 150 Aids

Lynchburg, Va., Aug. 10.—"Dry weather has dried our business for the present," said an official of the Thornhill Wagon Co. when that plant advised its 150 employes that there would be a temporary shut-down, due to the drought.

The company's officials think the idleness will not last long. Up to a short time ago the plant was being operated on full-time basis.

D. J. LEWIS TELLS CAMPAIGN ISSUES

Candidate for Seat in House From Maryland District Answers Supporters.

WORLD COURT FAVORED

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 10.—David J. Lewis, former member of the House of Representatives and former member of the Tariff Commission, made known his platform today, in his reply to a call signed by prominent Democrats of Montgomery, Frederick and Washington Counties that he be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress in the Sixth Maryland District this year.

The call came to Mr. Lewis as the result of his record of accomplishment in the Maryland State Senate and a member of the House of Representatives from this district for three terms. Last week he filed papers of entry into the coming primaries in the five counties of the district.

Reaffirms Former Position.

Reaffirming his attitude of two years ago, when he was a candidate, making old age pensions and the World Court his leading issues, Mr. Lewis takes what is regarded as an advanced step in the solution of the prohibition question by suggesting a constitutional convention, saying "its decisions and recommendations would likely possess sufficient weight with the States to carry a solution."

Tariff and unemployment are subjects for considerable attention, while one of great local import is what he terms "the plight of the Maryland mining industry," now much discussed in Garrett and Alleghany Counties. He charges the trouble to "discrimination in the freight rates." Mr. Lewis at one time worked in the mines.

Unemployment Is Problem.

The unemployment situation, the result of the impoverished conditions at Maryland mines and other conditions, has been a matter of much concern, he says.

Mr. Lewis will be opposed in the primary by former State's Attorney Fuller Barnard, jr., who has come out in favor of the repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

With a view to simplifying the Democratic situation, some of the Democratic leaders in the county have asked Mr. Barnard to withdraw, but he says he will remain in the race.

Gun Wounds Fatal To Loudoun Man

Edward Coyle Dies of Shots; Neighbor Is Held as Assailant.

Special to The Washington Post.

Leesburg, Va., Aug. 10.—Edward Coyle, 32 years old, died this morning at the Loudoun Hospital from gunshot wounds said by Sheriff E. S. Adrain to have been inflicted by Henry C. Wood, 40 years old, whose deceased first wife was a sister of the dead man. Wood immediately was arrested and held in jail here awaiting action of the grand jury. He and Coyle both worked as day laborers in the section of Loudoun County near Harpers Ferry.

The shooting was declared by Sheriff Adrain to have been provoked by Colye's assault on Mrs. Wood as she was walking toward her home Thursday afternoon. Wood obtained a warrant Friday morning for the arrest of Coyle, who the authorities were unable to locate. Armed with a shotgun, Wood was said to have accosted Coyle in a country store near his home and to have fatally wounded him.

Coyle's funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon, with interment in the Lutheran Cemetery in Neersville, Va. He is survived by his father, Samuel Coyle, three brothers and a sister. Wood has two children by his first wife and two children by his present wife.

AUTO CRASHES HURT SEVEN; ONE MAY DIE

Three Cars Overturn in as Many Accidents on Highways.

BLOWOUT CAUSES ONE

Overturning of three automobiles in as many accidents yesterday in the Washington area sent seven persons to hospitals with injuries that may prove fatal to a 4-year-old youth, James Cox, of 5239 Fifth street northwest.

The youngster was severely hurt with five others when the machine in which they were riding skidded off the road and turned over yesterday afternoon in attempting to round a sharp turn on the Georgetown-Leesburg pike, about one-half mile from Great Falls in Virginia.

Little hope for his recovery was held at Georgetown Hospital, where admittance was given to his mother, Mrs. Catherine Cox, 29 years old, who suffered hurts about the right leg in the accident. An unsuccessful transfusion on the boy was made from blood given by his father, John Cox, 30 years old, a mechanic, after he had been treated there for lacerations about the arms and legs.

Treatment also was given there to 2-year-old Catherine Cox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cox, for minor brises, and to Miss Betty Wilson, 5 yars old, of 812 Knnedy street northwest, also for bruises. Miss Wilson, the driver of the car, is the daughter of Capt. James E. Wilson, of the Ninth Precinct.

The blowout of a front tire of the automobile she was driving on a highway near Fairfax, Va., overturned the car and resulted in a broken left arm and lacerations of the right arm to Sadie Krouse, 28 years old, of 612 Maryland avenue southwest. She was taken by passing motorists to Georgetown Hospital, where her condition was reported as not serious.

Striking a concrete culvert in the automobile he was driving along the Rockville pike a short distance north of Bethesda, William Woodward, colored, 30 years old, of 3123 Eleventh street northwest, received serious injuries early last night.

He may have received a fracture of the skull. He was removed to Georgetown Hospital, where attendants reported that the machine turned a somersault upon striking the obstacle at the side of the thoroughfare.

Charles Town Rites Held for Mrs. Slifer

Special to The Washington Post.

Charles Town, W. Va., Aug. 10.—Mrs. Julia A. Slifer, wife of the late Luther Slifer, died at the home of her daughter in North Carolina on Thursday. Funeral services were conducted at the Methodist Episcopal Church South, yesterday afternoon, and the interment was made in the Edge Hill Cemetery.

Mrs. Slifer was a daughter of the late Thaddeus Baney, of Jefferson County. Surviving are a son, George N. Slifer, of Charles Town, and two daughters, Mrs. Sudie Oeher, of North Carolina, and Mrs. Mary V. Funk, of Lakeland, Fla.

Elkton Man Kills Himself With Gun

Act of Retired Business Man Is Held Prompted by Money Trouble.

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Aug. 10.—Placing a gun barrel against his heart and using a stick to press the trigger, John Tompkins, a retired business man of Elkton and one of the most popular men of that section of Rockingham County, tore a hole through his heart, killing himself instantly, sometime last night. His body was found this morning in his room in a local hotel, where he made his home.

Coroner L. H. Bruce, in an inquest, held it a case of suicide. No cause is known for Mr. Tompkins' act. Some of his friends believe it was prompted by financial troubles. He had made his home at Elkton for about 25 years, living a retired life. He stood high in the community as a citizen, and few men in Elkton had more friends.

Deputy Sheriff W. E. Lucas, who made an investigation of the suicide, said that Mr. Tompkins evidently shot himself about 1 o'clock this morning. No one in the hotel, where Mr. Tompkins lived, heard the shot. His body was discovered when one of the hotel officials went to his room to call him this morning.

Virginia Drought Viewed by Gardner

North Carolina Governor Calls Conditions There Disastrous.

Winchester, Va., Aug. 1 (A.P.).—Gov. C. Max Gardner, of North Carolina, said today that he had never seen anything so disastrous to the life of the agriculture industry as the drought which now exists from the North Carolina line to northern Virginia.

North Carolina, he said, was not afflicted except in the five northwestern counties of the State, where cattle and sheep raising is extensive. There, he continued, the raisers are confronted with the necessity of throwing their cattle on the market unless the drought is broken at once.

This region, according to the governor, is about 100 miles west of Winston-Salem. He said the remainder of the State is not affected by the drought and that the eastern section probably will have one of the greatest crops of corn, vegetables and tobacco in its history.

Gov. Gardner, who has been in Virginia this week participating in the Institute of Public Affairs at the University of Virginia, said he would not attend the drought conference called for Thursday by President Hoover, because his State was not seriously affected. He was week-end guest of former Gov. Harry Flood Byrd of Virginia at his home here.

ALEXANDRIA CLUBS PLAN BAY VOYAGE

Kiwanians and Rotarians Will Make Tidewater Journey.

RAIN TEST DUE TODAY

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 323.

The Alexandria Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs are making plans for a week-end steamer trip some time the latter part of September or first of October, the itinerary to include trips to Jamestown, Hampton, Newport News, Norfolk and Yorktown. Committees will be named this week by each club to make the necessary plans and register the names of those desiring to make the trip. Friends of the club members will be invited to go, and it is announced that a rate of $22 for the round trip will be named, provided as many as 150 persons avail themselves of the opportunity.

This is the first time in the history of either of the local clubs that such a trip has been planned, and those fostering the project feel confident that more than the required number will take advantage of the attractive itinerary and low rate. Further details of the plan will be announced after the weekly meetings of the clubs.

The rain powder for puncturing the clouds to produce rain, which has been ordered from Santa Fe, N. Mex., by Dan S. Hollenga, business manager of the chamber of commerce, is expected to arrive by express today, in which event the experiment will be made, the powder being sprayed on the clouds by an airplane.

It is expected that large crowds will be anxiously watching for the appearance of the airplane which will carry the rain-producing powder, and speculation is rife as to whether it will succeed in breaking the drought which has persisted for so long.

Funeral services for Jesse Murray, Confederate veteran, who died Saturday, will be conducted at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon from Demaine's mortuary chapel by the Rev. Edgar Carpenter, rector of Grace Episcopal Church. Interment will be in the Presbyterian Cemetery with Masonic ceremonies.

Danville Plans to Gain Liberal Arts College

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Aug. 10.—A movement to secure the College of Liberal Arts, now under consideration by a commission appointed by the last legislature, for Danville, has gained momentum, following a meeting of the directors of the chamber of commerce, at which a committee to cooperate with the city council and others interested in the movement, was appointed.

Danville's chances of securing the institution are considered good, inasmuch as there is no State school in south Virginia. Plans to be decided on include a course of action to arrange financial inducements to meet those offered by other Virginia cities.
